CHARLES ALLEN FON DERSMITH.

CHARLES ALLEN FON DERSMITH, son of Henry Clay and Anna Maria Burg Fon Dersmith, was born in Lancaster, Pa., July 24, 1846. When he was seven years old his parents moved to the borough of Columbia, Pa., and in the following eight years he attended the public and private schools of that place. He acquired a commercial education in his father's dry goods establishment. At the early age of eighteen years, Mr. Fon Dersmith responded to President Lincoln's call for volunteers. At the time of his enlistment he became corporal and returned a sergeant in Co. E, 195th P. V. I. When his term of enlistment was ended he returned home and was promptly offered the position of messenger in the Columbia Bank, and two years later became a regular clerk. A little later he was promoted to the responsible position of receiving teller. His attention to his duties, together with his efficiency as an all-around assistant, made his promotion rapid. In February, 1869, Mr. Fon Dersmith accepted a position in the Farmers' National Bank, Lancaster, as discount clerk and receiving teller, which position he held until March, 1882, when he resigned to become cashier of the newly-organized Fulton National Bank. Under his careful direction the bank received the powerful impetus which later carried it forward with such marked success.

In December, 1886, he returned to the Farmers' National Bank as cashier of this the oldest and largest banking institution in the county, which, in 1904, was converted into a Trust Company, and Mr. Fon Dersmith was elected its first treasurer. In this capacity he served until called away by death Easter Monday, April 12, 1909, not having been permitted to see this volume of the CIARLA, which he had kindly permitted us to dedicate to him. His unexpected departure, therefore, obliges us to dedicate it to his memory.

Mr. Fon Dersmith's training as a financier was most thorough, he having filled every position from general utility boy to the responsible one of cashier and treasurer. He enjoyed the distinction of being the best known banker in Lancaster County. For more than forty years he had been in close contact with the most influential men of finance and trade, and few have exercised a greater influence on both. His general personality and affability won for him a wide circle of friends and universal public esteem. He was one of Lancaster's foremost men in everything that related to public interests, and no citizen of that place ever acquitted himself more creditably in carrying out the tasks imposed upon him.

By education and by preference, Mr. Fon Dersmith was always in hearty communion with the Lutheran Church, and she, in return, bestowed her lay honors upon him. He was a member of the vestry and a Trustee of Trinity congregation, of Lancaster, a member of the Board of Home Missions of the General Council, and a member of the Board of Trustees of Muhlenberg College. As a Trustee of the College he showed his deep interest in the welfare of Muhlenberg by equipping, at his own expense, the very comfortable gymnasium now so greatly enjoyed by the students, by thinking and planning for the progress of the College, and by being ever among the first to contribute to the needs of all the departments.

In the death of Charles A. Fon Dersmith, Muhlenberg College has lost a warm friend and a liberal supporter.

DR. HAAS.

DEPARTMENT OF RELIGION AND PHILOSOPHY.

FREDERICK A. MUHLENBERG, D. D., the first President of the College, was Professor of Greek, Mental and Moral Sciences, and Evidences of Christianity. When he resigned in 1876, the next President, Rev. Benjamin Sadtler, D. D., became the head of the Department, and Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Seip was elected to the Professorship of Greek. In 1885, Dr. Sadtler suffered an unfortunate accident and was compelled to retire to private life. Rev. Theodore L. Seip, D. D., was chosen to succeed him, and assumed the duties of this Department in addition to his Greek Professorship. Mental Science was now transferred to the Department of English, and in 1892, Rev. Stephen Repass, D. D. (then pastor of St. John's Church, Allentown), was elected Professor of Evidences of Christianity. The Department was then known as the Department of Moral Science and Natural Theology.

In 1904, Rev. John A. W. Haas, D. D., became the fourth President of Muhlenberg, and under his wise administration the ideal of a Greater Muhlenberg is being rapidly realized. Prof. Robert C. Horn was elected Mosser-Keck Professor of Greek. Christian Evidences was transferred to Dr. Bauman, but beginning with the next collegiate year the President will again teach this subject. Dr. Haas has also taken over the Mental Science—which for some time before his administration had been taught by the Professors of English—thus making this Department once more distinctively the Department of Religion and Philosophy.

REV. JOHN A. W. HAAS, D. D., President and Professor of Religion and Philosophy, was born in Philadelphia, August 31, 1862. Studied at Parochial School of Zion's Church and Protestant Episcopal Academy. Graduated from University of Pennsylvania, 1884, acting as Latin Salutatorian. Graduated from Mt. Airy Theological Seminary, 1887, and ordained a minister of the Lutheran Church. The following year was spent in the University of Leipsic. Pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, of New York City, 1889-1896; from 1896, pastor of St. Paul's Church, erecting a new church for this congregation in 1898. 1904, elected fourth President of Muhlenberg College. Member of the Society of Biblical Literature. Editor with Prof. Henry Eyster Jacobs, D. D., of the Lutheran Cyclopedia. Author of "Bible Literature," "Biblical Criticism," and many valuable articles on theological subjects.

PROF. HORN.

DEPARTMENT OF ANCIENT LANGUAGES.

WHEN the first faculty of Muhlenberg College was organized, Rev. Frederick A. Muhlenberg, D. D., LL. D., first President of the College, became Professor of Greek, and Rev. William R. Hofford, D. D., Provisional Professor of Latin. Dr. Hofford resigned soon after his appointment to become President of the Allentown Female College, which had grown out of the Female Department of the old Collegiate Institute, and Rev. Matthias H. Richards, D. D., succeeded him—serving as Professor of Latin and English from 1868-73. When in 1874, Dr. Richards resigned to accept a pastorate in Indianapolis, Indiana, Rev. Theodore L. Seip, D. D., who, in 1867, had been elected Principal of the Academic Department and Assistant Professor in Greek, was elected to his place. In 1877, Dr. Muhlenberg resigned to become Professor of the Greek Language and Literature at the University of Pennsylvania, and Rev. Benjamin Sadtler, D. D., was elected second President of Muhlenberg. Dr. Seip now took charge of the classes in Greek (assisted from 1877-79 by Rev. Reuben Hill, A. M.), in addition to his duties as Professor of Latin. In 1881, the Mosser-Keck Professorship of the Greek Language and Literature was endowed, and Dr. Seip was elected to the chair. In 1886, he became the third President of the College and Professor of Moral Sciences and Evidences of Christianity, still retaining the Professorship of Greek; and Dr. Richards assumed his former duties once more. In 1892, Prof. George Taylor Ettinger, Ph. D., who was Principal of the Academic Department, was elected Professor of Pedagogy and Associate Professor of Latin, serving in this capacity until January 12, 1897, on which date he was elected to the full Professorship of Latin Language and Literature and Pedagogy, which position he still holds. Dr. Ettinger was the second alumnus of Muhlenberg to be elected to a Professorship in his Alma Mater, graduating, 1880. In 1904, Prof. Robert C. Horn, M. A., was elected Instructor of Greek to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. Seip, and later elected to the vacant Mosser-Keck Professorship.

From 1887 till 1904, an elementary course in Hebrew was offered for the benefit of prospective students of Theology. Rev. George F. Spieker, D. D., held this position till 1894, when he was called to a Professorship at the Mt. Airy Theological Seminary. He was succeeded by Rev. Jacob Steinhäuser, D. D., who died in 1904. Since that time the study of Hebrew at Muhlenberg has been wisely discontinued.

PROF. GEORGE TAYLOR ETTINGER, Professor of the Latin Language and Literature and Pedagogy, was born at Allentown, Pa., November 8, 1860. Prepared in Academic Department of Muhlenberg; graduated from Muhlenberg College, 1880, with first honor. Instructor in Academic Department, 1881-84; Principal of the Academic Department, 1884-92; Professor of Latin at Muhlenberg since 1892. Alumni Editor of the Muhlenberg since 1886. Fifteen years a Director of the Public Schools of Allentown, and for a number of years President of the Board of Control and later Secretary of the Board. Degree of Ph. D., from University of the City of New York. Member of Pennsylvania German Society, the American Philological Society, President of the Lehigh County Historical Society, member of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, Secretary and Treasurer of Alumni Association of the College, and Secretary of the Lehigh Prison Board.

ROBERT CHISHOLM HORN, A. M., Mosser-Keck Professor of the Greek Language and Literature, was born in Charleston, S. C. Graduated from Charleston High School, 1896, with first honor. Entered College of Charleston, autumn of 1896. Moved to Reading, Pa., and in 1897, entered Sophomore class at Muhlenberg College; graduated, 1900, with third honor. 1900-1901, a graduate student at Johns Hopkins University. 1901-1903, Instructor of Ancient and Modern Languages, North Carolina Military Academy, Red Springs, N. C. 1903-1904, a graduate student of Classical Philology in the Classical Department of Harvard University. June, 1904, appointed Instructor of the Greek Language and Literature; later elected to Mosser-Keck Chair. Spent summer of 1906 in Greece. 1908-1909, leave of absence for study at Harvard University.

PROF. OCHSENFORD.

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE.

AT THE foundation of the College in 1867, Rev. Samuel Philips, A. M., a minister of the Reformed Church, was appointed Provisional Professor of English. Rev. Philips served only a part of the first scholastic year, when Rev. Matthias H. Richards, D. D., was appointed permanent Professor of English, Rhetoric, and Political Economy. In 1874, Dr. Richards accepted a call to a congregation in Indianapolis, Indiana, and Rev. Revere Franklin Weidner, D. D., was elected Professor of English and History. In 1877, Dr. Weidner resigned, and Dr. Richards was prevailed upon to assume his former duties as Professor of English, History, and Rhetoric; he continued with the College in this capacity until his death in 1899, when Prof. John Yetter, of the class of '96, took temporary charge of the Department. Soon thereafter, Dr. Solomon E. Ochsenford was elected Professor of the English Language and Literature and Social Science, which position Dr. Ochsenford still very ably fills. In 1908, Prof. George N. Haasz, of the University of Pennsylvania, was appointed Instructor in English, History, and Social Science.

REV. SOLOMON E. OCHSENFORD, D. D., was born in Montgomery County, near Falkner Swamp, Pa., November 8, 1855. Prepared for college at Mt. Pleasant Seminary, Boyertown, Pa.; entered Muhlenberg in 1873, and was graduated in 1876; graduated from Mt. Airy Lutheran Theological Seminary, 1879, and ordained a minister. Pastor at Selinsgrove, Pa., 1879-1899. Since then, Professor of English Language and Literature and Social Science at Muhlenberg College. DEPARTMENT OF MODERN LANGUAGES.

REV. HANS NIKOLAUS RIIS was born at Luegumkloster in the duchy of Schleswig, Germany, in 1822. He was a man of brilliant scholarship, having a thorough knowledge of Greek, Latin, Arabic, and Sanskrit. In 1868, he became Muhlenberg's first German Professor, but occupied this position for only one scholastic year, preferring to return to his early home. Rev. Frederick W. A. Notz, Ph. D., a native of Wuerttemberg, was chosen to succeed him, and remained until 1872, in which year he resigned to accept the Professorship of Greek Language and Literature at the Northwestern University, at Watertown, Wisconsin. He was followed by Rev. George F.

Miller, then Principal of the Academic Department, who held the chair until he returned to active work in the ministry in 1878. Rev. B. W. Schmauk was now elected as Acting Professor of German, and served in this capacity till 1881, in which year Rev. William Wackernagel, D. D., who had been chosen Assistant Professor of German the preceding year, took full charge of the Department, which position he still holds. At a meeting of Trustees in January, 1908, Prof. Robert R. Fritsch, A. M., Ph. B., who was at that time Instructor in Greek, was elected to the position of Instructor in Modern Languages.

Until 1904, this Department included, besides German, the following studies: Universal History, Sacred History, Church History, Catechism, and French, which last was elective. In this year, however, a separate department was formed for History, French was made a required subject, and Spanish was added as an elective.

MR. HAASZ.

DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY AND SOCIAL SCIENCE.

REV. JOSEPH F. FAHS was Muhlenberg's first Professor of History. He was connected with the College, 1867-1870, and on his resignation was succeeded by Rev. Jacob B. Rath, A. M. In 1872, Rev. Rath again returned to active pastoral work, and Rev. Matthias H. Richards taught History in connection with his Professorship of English, Rhetoric, and Political Economy until 1874, in which year he resigned to accept a call from a congregation in Indianapolis, Indiana. He was succeeded by Rev. Revere Franklin Weidner, D. D. On the departure of Dr. Weidner, the studies composing this Department were divided between two other Departments—the Professor of English taking charge of the work in Social Science, and the Professor of Modern Languages taking charge of the work in History. This division continued till in 1905, when Rev. Charles Michael Jacobs, A. M., was elected Instructor of History, and was elected to the full Professorship of History in 1907, which position he has filled most acceptably ever since. In 1908, Prof. George N. Haasz, A. B., was elected Instructor in History, English, and Social Science.

REV. CHARLES MICHAEL JACOBS, A. M., Professor of History, was born at Gettysburg, December 5th, 1875. Elected to Harrison Scholarship, which he later resigned to accept the position of Assistant in European History. Elected Instructor in History, English, and Social Science at Muhlenberg College, 1908.

PROF. BAUMAN.

DEPARTMENT OF MATHEMATICS AND ASTRONOMY.

THE first professor in this Department was Rev. Edward J. Koons, A. M., the first Vice-President of the College and former principal of the Collegiate Institute, which preceded the organization of the College. He occupied the chair from 1867 to 1870, teaching Physics in connection with the branches of his own department. In 1870, he resigned to become editor of the Allentown Daily News. His successor was Prof. Davis Garber, Ph. D., who taught Physics, Geology, and Chemistry in addition to the studies properly comprised in his department until the endowment of the Asa Packer professorship in 1882. Dr. Garber served faithfully and well, endearing himself to all; his death, which occurred in 1897, was the occasion of genuine grief to all who knew him. Rev. John A. Bauman, M. A., was chosen to succeed him, and has filled this position most acceptably up to the present time.

REV. JOHN A. BAUMAN, PH. D., Professor of Mathematics, Astronomy, and Meteorology, was born at Easton, Pa., 1847. Prepared for college at Quakertown Seminary. He is the first alumnus to be elected to a professorship at Muhlenberg, and received his degree of Ph. D., from his Alma Mater in 1894.

MR. WILLISTON.

PROF. LEAR.

PROF. REESE.

DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCES.

WHEN the College was founded in 1867 this Department was divided between two professors, both men of high ability: Rev. Edward J. Koons, A. M., who taught Mathematics, Astronomy, and Physics until 1870, when he resigned to become editor of the Allentown "Daily News" and later to be admitted to Deacon's Orders in the Episcopal Church; and Theodore C. Yeager, M. D., who taught Chemistry and Botany until 1873, at which time he was elected Mayor of Allentown.

Rev. Koons was succeeded by Prof. Davis Garber, Ph. D., who taught Mathematics, Astronomy, Physics, and Geology until 1873, when, on the resignation of Dr. Yeager, Chemistry was also added to his Department—Wm. S. Herbst, M. D., taking charge of the classes in Botany, until the endowment of the Chair of Sciences. Dr. Garber taught these subjects until 1882, when, on the endowment of the Science Chair, he was elected to the Chair of Mathematics, Astronomy, and Meteorology, and Edgar F. Smith, Ph. D., was called to fill the newly endowed "Asa Packer Professorship of Natural and Applied Sciences." In 1884, Dr. Smith accepted the Professorship of Natural Sciences at Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio, and Nathaniel Wiley Thomas, Ph. D., was elected to the vacant position. In 1885, Dr. Thomas resigned to accept the Professorship of Chemistry in Girard College, and was succeeded by Rev. John H. Bauman, M. A., an alumnus of Muhlenberg (1873). Rev. Bauman, who has since been honored with the degree of Ph. D. (Muhlenberg), acceptably filled this position until 1897, in which year he was elected to succeed Dr. Garber as Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy, in which capacity he still serves. Prof. Dowell was now chosen to fill the Chair of Sciences, and filled the position with marked ability. In 1904, he was succeeded by Prof. Roderick E. Albright. On the resignation of Prof. Albright, Dr. Lear (who had been elected Professor of Biology in 1899) was constituted the temporary head of the Department, until Prof. Wm. H. Reese, the present able head of the Department, was elected.

PROF. JOHN LEAR, A. M., M. D., Professor of Biology, was born near Easton, 1859; prepared for college at Trach's (now Easton) Academy and Keystone State Normal School. Graduated from Lafayette, 1884; received degree of M. D., after a course at the University of Pennsylvania, 1887-89. Professor of Natural Science at Central University of Peia, Iowa, 1884-86; Professor of Natural Science at Trach's Academy, 1887. From 1889-1899, he successfully conducted a large practice. In 1899, he was elected Instructor in Biology at Muhlenberg; 1904, elected Professor of Biology and temporary Professor of Natural and Applied Sciences. Dr. Lear is an eminent authority on Biological subjects.

PROF. WILLIAM HAAS REESE, M. S., was born at Allentown, Pa., October 17, 1875. Graduated from Phillipsburg (N. J.) High School, with first honor; prepared for college at Lerch's Preparatory School, graduating in 1892 as salutatorian. Graduated from Lafayette, 1896, with honors. Specialized in Chemistry and Biology. Taught Chemistry and Physics in Phillipsburg High School, 1896. Specialized at Lafayette, and took post-graduate work at the University of New York. Received his M. S., from Lafayette, 1899. Asa Packer Professor of Natural and Applied Sciences at Muhlenberg since.

CYRUS HAMLIN WILLISTON, B. S., was born at New Castle, New Hampshire, in 1883. Prepared at Lerch's Preparatory School. 1898, seaman on "Waltham," of Boston; 1899, assistant Fifth Engineer on "St. Louis;" 1900, coxswain on "St. Mary's." Graduated from New York Nautical School, 1901. Graduated from Lafayette College, 1908, with degree of B. S. in Chemistry. Took post-graduate course at Lafayette, 1908-09. Instructor in Science at Muhlenberg, 1909. Mr. Williston is a man of broad knowledge and solid attainments. He has paid much attention to things scientific, and is a member of the Lafayette Technical Society and of the American Chemical Society.

PROF. MARKS.

DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC.

THE Department of Music in Muhlenberg College was instituted for the purpose of treating music educationally as an element of liberal culture. It was not designed for the training of technical musicians and the making of composers; this phase of music belongs to the conservatory or regularly constituted school of music, but it is to deal with the "underlying principles of musical art and the various sciences on which it rests, and to set out and illustrate to students who are seeking education what these principles signify, how they may be brought helpfully and inspiring into intellectual life and what part they should play in the public consciousness of a cultivated and civilized nation," and to teach the significance of the great masters of music in the history of our civilization.

The study of aesthetics has for a long time been neglected in most universities and colleges. Music has been called upon to supply this deficiency, for it is in a large sense "the most liberal and humanistic of all studies," and as an art study may contribute as much, even to the general discipline of the mind as the study of an exact science. Therefore, this course is not only offered to those who are somewhat proficient in piano-forte playing or singing, nor simply to the student who intends to enter the ministry, but also to those who have no technical training at all, who will never become performers, to cultivate in them good taste and the power to appreciate music.

To attain this end, music has been introduced as one of the elective courses in the form of lectures in the Theory and History of Music. Much stress is laid on the biography of the great composers, with a critical discussion of their works, illustrated with vocal and instrumental selections from their masterpieces.

PROFESSOR CLEMENT A. MARKS, MUS. DOC., Professor of Music, was born near Emaus, Lehigh Co., Pa., on May 31, 1864. He received his education in the public schools, and in the Academic Department of Muhlenberg College. He devoted himself to the study of music at an early age, and soon became a proficient organist. He has served as organist for Lutheran, Reformed, and Moravian Churches at Emaus; Zion's Reformed, Allentown, 1886-90; since 1890, at St. John's Lutheran, Allentown. He is noted as a composer of music, and has won wide fame as the leader of the Euterpean Oratorio Society. Elected Professor of Music at Muhlenberg in 1905; degree of Mus. Doc., from Muhlenberg, 1908.

REVERE FRANKLIN WEIDNER, D. D., LL. D., S. T. D., was born November 22, 1851, at Centre Valley, Lehigh County, Pa. He prepared in private schools in Allentown, and when Muhlenberg College began its career (1867) he had advanced far enough to enter as a Junior, graduating two years later with first honor.

During the year following his graduation, he tutored in his Alma Mater; for the next three years he studied in the Evangelical Lutheran Theological Seminary, at Philadelphia, and was ordained immediately upon his graduation in 1873.

Dr. Weidner's work as pastor embraces the incumbency of congregations at Phillipsburg, N. J. (1873-78), and at Philadelphia, Pa. (1878-82). In these labors he was eminently successful. At the age of thirty, he went West to become Professor of Hebrew and Greek Exegesis at Augustana Theological Seminary, Rock Island, Ill. He also lectured on Dogmatics and Ethics. During the ten years that Dr. Weidner served the Augustana Synod and Seminary he was associated in Summer School work with Dr. William R. Harper in teaching Hebrew, and with D. L. Moody in lecturing on Biblical topics in Northfield and in Chicago. In 1891, he was elected to the presidency of Chicago Theological Seminary, which position he still holds. He is a member of the American Philological Association, the American Oriental Society, the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis, and other learned bodies. His life has been one of almost incessant toil. Along with the labors of his positions, he has devoted much time to a careful and critical study of the Greek and Hebrew texts of the Bible, as well as to Sanskrit and other languages. He is a frequent contributor to theological and philological periodicals. The following is a list of his publications: "Theological Encyclopedia"—Vol. I, "Exegetical Theology;" Vol. II, "Historical and Systematic Theology;" Vol. III, "Practical Theology;" "Biblical Theology of the Old Testament;" "Biblical Theology of the New Testament," two volumes; "Studies in the Book: New Testament," three volumes; "Old Testament," four volumes; "System of Dogmatic Theology," two volumes; "Introductory New Testament, Greek Method;" "Commentary on Mark;" "Commentary on the Four Gospels;" "Christian Ethics;" "Bengel's Gnomon," three volumes; "Ball's Hebrew Grammar;" "Theologia; or the Doctrine of God" (1902); "Ecclesiologia; or the Doctrine of the Church" (1903); "The Doctrine of the Ministry" (1907).

OLIVER PETER SMITH, D. D., was born at Tripoli, Lehigh County, Pa., September 4, 1848. After attending Allentown Collegiate Institute and Military Academy, he entered Muhlenberg, graduating in 1871. Like Dr. Weidner, he was also a member of the Sophronian Literary Society, being one of its founders. In 1874, he graduated from the Lutheran Theological Seminary, and from 1874 to 1889, was pastor of the Augustus Lutheran Church, Trappe, Pa., and two congregations in the vicinity, during which time his church at Trappe was remodeled and new ones built at Limerick, Pa., and Schwenksville, Pa. Since 1889, he has been pastor of the Church of the Transfiguration, Pottstown, Pa. During his pastorate at Trappe he was Professor of German in Washington Hall Institute. He has held the following offices: President of the First District Conference of the Ministerium of Pennsylvania, 1890-92; Member of the Board of Trustees of Mt. Airy Seminary for more than twenty-five years; English Secretary of the Board for twenty years; Member of the English Home Missions Board for twenty-three years, and Member of the Educational Board of Synod.

In 1903, Dr. Smith made an extended tour through England, France, Belgium, Italy, Spain, Switzerland, Germany and Holland. He has since lectured on his travels.

Sixteen years ago he received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Ursinus College. He married Mary Matilda Hobson, October 21, 1886. He has two children, Francis H. and Oliver H. Smith.

The subject of this sketch, GEORGE HENRY GERBERDING, D. D., was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., August 21, 1847. His early education was secured in the public schools and the academy in his native city. In 1869, he entered Thiel Hall, afterwards Thiel College, Monaca, Pa. He entered Muhlenberg in 1871 and graduated in the Class of '73. He was a member of the Sophronian Literary Society. His theological training was received at the Lutheran Theological Seminary, at Philadelphia, Pa., from which he graduated in 1876, and was ordained in June of the same year by the Pittsburgh Synod.

Dr. Gerberding served charges at Jewett, Ohio, and at Fargo, N. D., doing the work of a pioneer at the latter place. In 1894, he was called to a professorship in the Chicago Lutheran Theological Seminary, where, as Professor of Practical Theology, he has found his proper sphere. His twenty years of large and varied experience in active ministerial work in both Eastern and Western fields, enable him to fulfil admirably the demands of his position. As a writer, he has the distinction of being the author of the most widely circulated and most popular theological book that has appeared in the American Lutheran Church, viz., "The Way of Salvation in the Lutheran Church." This book is in its 23rd thousand, has been translated into German, Spanish, Norwegian, Swedish and partly into Telugu.

His book, "The Lutheran Pastor," is used as a text-book in at least six Theological Seminaries. He is also the author of "New Testament Conversions" and "The Life and Letters of W. A. Passavant, D. D."

JOHN NICUM, D. D., was born in Winnenden, Kingdom of Wuerttemberg, Germany, January 6, 1851. He prepared for college in the Winnenden Latin School and the Academic Department of Muhlenberg College. During his collegiate course he won several prizes; was a member of the Euterpean Literary Society, of the Goethe Verein and the German Literary Society. He graduated from the Lutheran Theological Seminary in 1876, and was ordained the same year at Reading, Pa., after which he served congregations at Frackville, Philadelphia and Syracuse, and since 1887, has been pastor of St. John's Church, in Rochester, N. Y. Dr. Nicum was President of the Fourth, now Rochester, Conference of the Lutheran Ministerium of New York from 1884 to 1886, after serving for several years as its Secretary. In addition to filling other responsible positions, he was instrumental in raising Wagner College from the simple preparatory school for the seminary to an institution of more liberal education by introducing the study of Logic, Astronomy, Economics, Commercial Law, etc., the result of which was to raise the standard of efficiency so that the Board of Regents of the State of New York had placed Wagner College on the honor roll, because of the excellent results obtained at the Regents' examinations. Dr. Nicum's withdrawal from Wagner College in 1902 was a distinct and almost irreparable loss to the institution.

On April 30, 1878, Dr. Nicum married Josephine Jeanetta, daughter of the Rev. Daniel Sanner, of Tremont, Pa.

EDGAR DUBS SHIMER, A. M., PH. D., son of James Oliver and Elmira Dorinda Shimer, was born at Shimersville, Northampton County, Pa., February 25, 1853. In September, 1870, he entered College, and graduated in 1874, dividing first honor with Oscar E. Holman. He was appointed valedictorian of his class, and received the gold prize in oratory. He was a member of the Euterpean Literary Society and of the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity. His Alma Mater conferred on him the degree of A. M., in 1877, and the degree of Ph. D., in 1887.

After graduating, he entered the teaching profession, teaching in the public schools of New York City from 1875 to 1896. He was engaged as lecturer on Philosophy of Education, 1886-87; Adjunct Professor of Pedagogy, 1887-90, and Professor of Philosophy, 1890-96, in the University of the City of New York. In 1896, he was elected Assistant Superintendent of the Public Schools of New York City. He is one of the founders of "The Emile" Pedagogical Society of the young men of New York City. He has published "The Profession of Teaching," "The Training of the Teacher of Austria," translated, "Metaphysical Assumption," "The Relation of Language to Thought," besides contributing to many of our leading magazines numerous articles on educational and psychological topics. He is an accomplished scholar, of deep and sound-minded principles, and by his force and tact has attained merited success, so that he has won the warmest commendations of all the prominent educators with whom he has come in contact.

He married Mary C. Hannum, August 29, 1876.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY.

IT WAS with some feeling of trepidation that we assembled as Freshmen within college walls, to work our way up to that proud entry upon American life which begins with the Baccalaureate degree. There is a thrilling sensation in walking first under their shadow, and in feeling one's self their property—subject to a code of printed laws and to moneyed fines; but there is also, on the other hand, something very pleasant in migrating into such a learned community, in the necessity of measuring life by new habits, in the consciousness of a higher state of development to be reached.

Ever since we became aware of the agreeable surroundings, our relations toward the department heads have been gradually becoming more intimate and cordial, exception being made, of course, to an occasional post-exam-rapture. Four years of solicitous activity on their part have resulted, not only in establishing very amicable ties, but in inculcating sound doctrine. We all take pride, at least, in this fact, that never in Muhlenberg's classrooms have we been subjected to any of such unchristian doctrine as is now being daily taught in many of the higher American institutions—perverting the mind and undermining morality. When it is taught that “the Decalogue is no more sacred than a syllabus,” that “conceptions of right and wrong are as unstable as styles of dress,” and that “the home is too archaic and narrow a channel for the transmission of progress to the race to come,” there are radical transformations being wrought in current thought and conduct, and, in the words of Emerson—“The very hopes of man, the thoughts of his heart, the religion of nations, the manners and morals of mankind are all at the mercy of a new generalization.” But Truth shall never strike her top-sails in compliment to ignorance or sophistry. Whether in or out of fashion, she is the real object of the understanding; whatsoever else is recommended or authorized by consent, is nothing but ignorance or something worse. “O Truth! O Goddess who instructs us, why didst thou put thy palace in a well?”

The Senior class furnished six regulars for the '08 'Varsity football team, seven members of the Glee Club, as well as the main characters in the college play. Her contestants in the inter-class meet, although entirely out of training, showed their off-hand athletic ability by winning second place in the same. A third gift to the head of the German Department was made by the class in the shape of a beautiful mortarboard, which brought to the doctor's face the same smile as is invariably worn by a German when he beholds a keg of “Weiss-bier.” Adopting a custom obtaining at other institutions, the men have been wearing caps and gowns since Easter—a practice which, it is hoped, will be continued by succeeding classes.

In all phases of college-life, '09 has cut a prominent figure—has won ever-increasing respect from the day of her Freshman turkey-parade to the donning of the sable. To her, so famed in story, college days are but a memory—aye, a pleasant memory! New duties now are hers, but ne'er, dear Muhlenberg, shall she forget thee. Parting and forgetting? What faithful heart can do these? Though lost to sight, to memory dear thou ever wilt remain.

NINETEEN TEN'S HISTORY.

(As viewed by an inhabitant of Mars, about 2500, A. D.)

SOME years ago, when airships had attained the highest perfection and had become a "mere existent want," it was my privilege to make an extensive trip in one of them in the interest of science. Indeed, I was in a sense nothing more nor less than a "Pure Food Inspector." I was to sail to the Milky Way and by chemical analysis ascertain whether it was a pure or an adulterated mental conception. After considerable storage of pure air and other necessities, I was ready to enter the planetary system, to plunge into the infinite. Without much ado I shot into endless space. On and on I sped thru infinite realms of darkness, thru a wilderness of death separating worlds of life, from light to darkness, from darkness to light. Soon I felt the rushing of the planets, I was blinded by the blazing of suns, I beheld mighty constellations on my right and on my left. Suddenly, as thus I sped from infinite to infinite, I tilted over a new world. I realized that a system more mysterious, a world more billowy, another depth, another height, was coming, was nearing, was at hand.

When I regained consciousness I found myself in a strange city, my wrecked airship over and about me, and myself but slightly hurt. That which brought this calamity upon me, and at the time I deemed it such, was due to a deficiency in the steerage gear. It was not long, however, before I discovered that the planet which I had struck was Mars with which Jupiter had been in constant telegraphic communication. By reason of this, its language was not unknown to me. Instead of returning to my native planet at once by the more modern method of transportation I spent several days in this city on Mars.

While viewing the sights in this city, I beheld an odd looking shop and upon inquiry learned that it was a second-hand book store. Out of simple curiosity I entered this store, and while gazing casually about, espied a most peculiar volume. I took it up and was surprised to learn, upon asking the price, that it was most expensive. It was entitled "History of Muhlenberg." I became interested. It was strange. Muhlenberg, I mused, must be some planet or country of which I had, strangely, not yet heard. At all events I must have that book. I bought it, and eagerly perused its title page and preface. The book had been translated by a Marsian student of Archaeology from a somewhat disfigured and antiquated volume, which centuries before has been lost on the planet by a force of Muhlenberg astronomers. I afterwards learned that the interpretation as expressed in his translation was frequently a slight alteration of the original.

According to this modern authority, Muhlenberg was a famous district on the remote planet Earth. Its history was exceedingly interesting and was divided most peculiarly, as I then thought, into periods of four years each. There was in this section, it appears, the most definite class distinction even among the higher and privileged element. Contrary to the custom of nations, the division of class and caste was just, the standard being set by examinations in which a rigid honor system was used. The nomenclature of the classes as given by the translator was as follows: First Year Men, Second Year Men, Junior Sophisters, and Senior Sophisters. The First Year Men would retain their position for one year (some indeed permanently), after which they ascended to the next higher plane, until finally they completed the fourth year, when they were supposed to be sufficiently competent to grapple successfully with all the problems which the before-mentioned Earth could possibly present.

The author does not, however, enter into detail on the subject of classes with the exception of that period known as the "Golden Age" in which one class figures so prominently. There seems to have been a continual civil strife at Muhlenberg. In the year nineteen hundred and six, Anno Domini, it seems to have reached the high-water mark; this being due to another migration of First Year Men. The Second Year Men were desirous of subjugating the Emigrants. The latter, unwilling to submit to the yoke of those who were not their superiors, violated indiscriminately the mandates which those vain and inconsequent beings had devised and promulgated. The Second Year Men being too powerless to prevent this violation of their printed regulations, very calmly and very wisely tolerated it. Immediately after the migration it became apparent that a severe battle was impending. It occurred. It was the first great battle of the new class and was called the "Battle of the Bowl." It was closely fought and victory was claimed by both of the belligerent classes. After this battle the war continued in a desultory fashion, until the two armies were prepared to meet for a final test on the Gridiron, this being the most bloody field in that district, when, alas, the Second Year Men, realizing that their army would not be at all able to withstand the onslaught of the invaders, fled in total rout and utter confusion, thus forfeiting their claim of superiority to the First Year Men. (So reads the translation.)

As the Class entered the latter division of their first year a certain harmless pastime known as Baseball was indulged in. The team which was organized for this purpose was later placed "under the ban." It was on the occasion of one of their inter-class games that a certain Second Year Man appropriated the miniature sphere, used during the game, to his private museum. The famous class greatly resented this and demanded its immediate return. The man, underestimating the intense importance of the utmost promptness in the matter, neglected to return it at once, with the painful result that on one dark, damp, and dismal, yea cold and congealing night, when all the neighboring world was wrapped in silent slumber, he was gently conducted to the nearest water-course, and, for the entertainment of the men present, mildly requested to perform the most novel and marvelous acrobatic feats in the silvery sand of the crystal creek. All this with little subtraction of tailors' draperies.

The second year of this Class of 1910, so called because its members would be "Senior Sophisters" at that time, is full of equally important events, according to the author. During this year the Class Basketball Team became exceedingly prominent. Basketball was a sport of those days which required great skill. The 1910 Team was evidently invincible and its glory appeals even to our modern mind and must not be passed without a word. The author states: "This indeed was a team which merited highest praise. In its first year it carried the game on each occasion. In its second year, during the inter-class games, it easily held first place and in consequence was awarded a beautiful trophy. Its crowning glory, however, lies in the fact that, though it always played 'clean,' it was never once defeated." It was during this year that the Class now proved "a priori" that the administration of out-door baths by means of complexion brushes dipped repeatedly into vessels containing a turpentinous liquid of a Shamrock color is an exceedingly effective method of treatment for the subjection of obstreperous children to a calm and even humiliating submissiveness. During this same year occurred "The Banquet." The Marsian abandons the hopeless task of a complete translation because of the lack in his language, of equivalents for the words and phrases employed by the original author who attempts the description of an affair which apparently seemed almost indescribable even to himself. One page only does he succeed in translating and this treats of the trip preceding "The Banquet," rather than "The Banquet" itself. While on their journey toward the city where this event was to take place the men passed an establishment upon which was painted in prominent letters the name "Muhlenberg." One of the men jocularly remarked, "Behold the Sister-Institution." Here we have the first intimation of the possibility that after all Muhlenberg might not be a strange land.

Thus the history continues, but fearing lest the stigma of prolixity also be attached to this article I shall hasten toward the conclusion.

It was most interesting to me to read about a place whose executive body consisted as the author says, of men of such profound wisdom and intellect and still they could not, or, if they could, would not, prevent this civil war, and consequently I then and there decided to seek this ancient land to ascertain whether or not my authority was correct in his translation and also to clarify, if possible, the obscurity which seemingly enveloped it all. I left Mars on my airship which had in the meantime been repaired, and sailed to the planet Earth, where I soon acquired the spoken language. I sought the location of Muhlenberg. Muhlenberg was all I knew, but it was enough. To my hearers it was no mystery. I was guided to a beautiful spot, not so very far from the North Pole of the planet, a spot whose natural scenery was such as commanded admiration, but only a spot and not a place as the Marsian would lead one to suppose. I was informed that here were the ruins of one of the most famous colleges of that country. I began my search in the debris among the ruins, and, after some excavation, unearthed what might have been a book case. At least, I supposed it to be such, for after removing some foreign matter I discovered a number of volumes which, tho defaced, were in a comparatively fair state of preservation. This fact I attributed to the excellent quality of paper used. Each of these books was entitled "CIARLA." I have devoted many years to the proper study of these books and have found some to be superior in their artistical qualities, some in statistical, and some in literary lines, but the one which is the embodiment of the three is stamped 1910.

For alphabetical reasons, at least, we have selected "the only Southerner in the class" as the opening theme of this series of sketches, and, by virtue of his many excellent qualities he well deserves this honor. Long, lanky, good-natured, yet with a full realization of the dignity it is incumbent upon him as a Junior to uphold, he is one of the shining lights of one of the most brilliant classes Muhlenberg has ever had. Each professor has his own peculiar way of pronouncing Aberly's name, some making the "A" long (to agree with Aberly's height, probably), others pronouncing it with a short "A"—perhaps by way of contrast. No matter how they pronounce it, there is always a response, and rarely, if ever, anything like a failure.

¶ If you want to get Aberly interested in your conversation, talk the negro problem—he's quite at home in it, and generally makes you believe as he believes, even though he is "not an orator" (to quote from him). But it's very hard to get him interested in girls. This is partly proved by the fact that he can be found in his room at least two nights a week. John figures prominently in College and class athletics, both in football and basketball. Last year he made his debut on the Glee Club.

Ernst has been known as "Spider" ever since he spun his web at Muhlenberg, but has hopes of having his nickname changed since Henry Mueller took the liberty of calling him "Doc." Zuch classified Austin as a "tentaculiferous arachnida," but Zuch was mistaken: Ernst entertains a Sparrow instead of capturing flies. "Spider" comes all the way from Easton, the supposed home of pretty girls. Their beauty is plainly reflected on his features. Some unknown attraction takes him to Easton every Saturday. He has even threatened to walk home in case of a strike on the trolley line.

In spite of his deliberate way of doing things, Austin gets some work done. He plays checkers and chess with Everett till late in the night, and in an exasperatingly raucous voice rouses his opponent at six the next morning. "Spider" isn't half bad as an artist. He can "plot minutely the internal appurtenances of a frog with great exactitude." All his drawings he preserves in a very neat notebook, and explains them in great detail to anyone who can be coaxed to listen. In this man can be seen the germs of budding genius. He occupies the foremost place—at the boarding table. We confidently believe that "Doc" will succeed in his chosen profession, medicine, and that in due course of time he will be a leading spirit—somewhere.

The ability of this gentleman is not to be gauged by his size. He has made an enviable rep. since he's at College. We are told that he retires no later than 9.30 every night, never misses breakfast (a most exceptional record) and studiously avoids girls. He says he has met only two of them during his three years at Muhlenberg (another college record broken). Although the chess board and the gym. used to be the only scenes of his athletic activities, he was slab artist for the Pagans in the Junior Ausflug. With the inevitable Ernst at his side to advise him he is hard to beat at chess or checkers. His class—and society—debates are good, but "By Cracky" they're dry. Geary is a total abstainer; i. e., he never eats pie. Is this the reason he's such a shark in Math. and Pedagogy? He intends teaching the former after graduation, using a well-known professor as his model. In Pedagogy he argues strenuously against co-education as might be expected. His ready wit, coupled with an unyielding pertinacity, enables him to squelch his opponents in debate. On occasion he even condescends to tell a story. Nothing can be said against the character of this young man—he leads a very straight life. Reverting to his skill in checkers, it is said that he can sweep the board of his opponent by means of a parabolic curve. He does this by the help of his Math.

This rara avis nests on the banks of the Schuylkill. He is a native of Reading, the home of Barbey's beer and Reading pretzels, but indulges only in the latter. Perhaps the most noticeable thing about Gelsinger is his quiet manner, paradoxical as this may seem. He has cultivated to perfection the "happy art of minding one's own business." Although a student in the fullest sense of the word, he does one thing that is not in harmony with the laws of the institution—he comes late to Latin recitations nearly every Monday. When Schmoyer's tardy he says the car's late. It may be the car's fault in Howard's case, but we rather suspect shirtwaists and directoire gowns. He has the distinction of having invented a language unknown to anyone but himself. Yerger and Huyett go a step further—they speak in an unknown tongue at the boarding house. Gelsinger doesn't talk much even in the known tongue. He walks slowly, looks solemn, thinks much and says little. How he ever struck up a congenial acquaintance with his Bacchanalian roommate is hard to understand. That the good die young is disproved in G. Howard's case, although he's far from being of the goody-goody sort. To him all studies are easy, except Math. German has come to him so easily and readily that it brought with it the German (Sophomore) Prize. In summing up the characteristics of our worthy classmate we would designate him as sensible, companionable, and brimful of the right kind of class spirit.

"Chappy" Gernet is the cleanest man in College: He goes to Bath on Saturday and doesn't get out of it until Monday morning. Someone has estimated that during his three years at Muhlenberg he has put about 5,000,000 nails into his coffin. (Cigarettes.) Gernet is the James Whitcomb Riley of pipe-dream fame. He loves his pipe better than Nathan Hale loved his country, and the "love" is evidently reciprocated, for the pipe is the strongest friend he has. A Meerschaum pipe, a little Tuxedo, and an afternoon off suffices to take "Chappy" into the realm of contentment. An equestrian of no mean ability he leaps over Greek and Latin fences of all heights in a most reckless way. He believes in a liberal education for everybody, but seems to fear he might become a book-worm, for he is constantly guarding against it. "Chappy" is one of the sporty men of the class. Much of his time is spent at his fraternity house and in attending the funerals of near relatives or the birthday celebrations held in their honor. Generous to a fault, he will assist another in studying Latin and Greek and will share the "where-withal" without hesitation. He is possessed of much innate ability, but has preferred to use only diplomacy in the classroom. So successful a diplomat is "Chappy" that he has outwitted the wariest professors without the slightest difficulty.

A man of broad experience, large frame, and deep bass voice. During his Fresh. and Soph. years he worked hard in the gym. to blow off the top of the spirometer. He succeeded and is now leading the Glee Club. He also teaches a German Bible Class, and sings in a choir regularly and at social functions irregularly. When he isn't singing "Down in Jungle Town" he is sleeping or rehearsing. Every day he opens his door, and to keep his voice in training gives vent to a flood of music. A man of his attainments should be "one of the leading men of the class," which he is. A glibness of speech, a strong voice, and an imposing presence all combine to make him an orator of almost marvelous ability. One of his best known discourses is that delivered at a social gathering—"The Human Soul." Mr. Hassler's intellectual attainments are of a high order; never does he refuse to recite when called upon—even if he did not put as much time on the lesson as he would have liked to—and he always gets through. In him the Republican party has a staunch defender: he has even championed the cause from the rostrum. For several seasons our subject has figured as a star on the Glee Club program, scoring great successes. John is going to be a minister, unless his little speech deceives us.

The building shook, the lights danced, etc.—No, it wasn't the fault of intemperance—No, nor an earthquake, because the seismograph did not record any abnormal disturbances. Investigation proved that Horn; i. e., "Jakey" was rehearsing a speech. Really, he can move mountains with that voice. Honorable Jacob Horn is the greatest bulwark of American Democracy, with the exception, perhaps, of William Jennings Bryan.

He amuses himself and annoys us by daily, verbal tilts with our honored Professor of Latin on the tariff question. The contest always results in a draw, because the bell generally rings before "Jakey" is finished. 'Tis said "Empty barrels make the most noise." He is certainly empty if the theory is correct.

Horn is an athlete to the extent of tennis and class football. He was a brilliant player on the co-ed tennis team at Kutztown a few years ago. He has memorized the Kutztown grammar and his discourses on pure English are very instructive(?).

How such a vivacious youngster can be president of a Luther League and "chief spouter" in a Bible Class is an unfathomable mystery.

Horn is the man with original ideas. He advances so many new theories that the entire student-body is kept busy either dis-cussing or merely "cussing" them.

So much for the "trumpet."

This young boy has more names than any other man in the class. A few of the most popular ones: "Das Kind"—Dr. W. "L'enfant"—Fritsch. "Now Paul"—Dr. E. Translated, all these words mean "child." Strange consistency on the part of the various professors!

Huyett is the only real Pennsylvania German in our fold. He is a veritable storehouse for German stories. For convenience he has classified them as follows: First class—Ordinary; second class—Extraordinary; third class—Unutterable. He is witty, versatile and woman-wise. Femininity delights in him and generally goes wild when he operates his story-phone.

As an athlete he indulges in tennis and class football. He was official water boy for the Varsity football squad in 1908.

Huyett will cast his first ballot in a few years, so he is still brimful of the animal spirits of youth.

When wrath dominates this knight from Wernersville he hurls at his tormentors maledictions more terrible than his favorite melodramatic authors have ever dared to use. Only one man in the class has him "skun" as a master of vituperation, and that's Zuch, who beats him by at least three laps every "go."

To the student of human nature Martin Selser Kleckner presents fascinating opportunities. One of the youngest men of the class, he is full of healthful vigor and vim; and accomplishes whatever he undertakes with characteristic energy and thoroughness. He is preparing to enter the medical profession, and a man more thoroughly interested in his subject would be hard to find. He writes articles on Medicine, and delivers orations and extemporaneous talks on the subject. In Biology he has prosecuted research work with much success. In addition he has an abiding interest in Chemistry, spending much of his spare time in the Laboratory; while there, he devotes his time, not only to the pursuit of knowledge for himself, but also to unselfishly helping along the Sophomores.

Kleckner takes an active part in all College activities. He has done good work as an athlete, and represented the College at several track-meets; he is peculiarly well fitted for work of this kind because of the saving self confidence which always stands him in such good stead. By reason of this quality he has also very creditably taken the leading roles in several plays presented by the College Dramatic Association. Kleckner is dramatic in every way—it was evidently born in him. He even infuses dramatic expression into the Psalms read during chapel services.

"Bill," the mainstay of the Prohibition party at Muhlenberg, is so radical on the subject that he will not permit anyone else to drink a drop of any beverage but distilled water.

Elbert is a football player of some note. Under the instruction of Jonathan F. Zane, Jr., he has become an accomplished boxer. He is devoted to women, German, and German women. Landis is a connoisseur in art. His room is decorated with copies of many of the ancient masterpieces a la Grecque.

"Der Weiskopf" (the white head) delights in social affairs, and has the remarkable record of having entertained three girls at one time.

He is the dormitory nurse. Nothing is too much for him to do. He even nurses Grant, '11, when he gets his weekly attack of "dizziness."

"Bill" has captivated many "fair ones" and incensed many more, perhaps, unfair ones by his rendition of popular melodies in falsetto voice. Some "friend" of his has informed us that he has a lovely mezzo-soprano voice, and can sing up to "T" with facility.

But, then, he is a good student, great orator, and debater, so we are happy to have him with us.

This gentleman, dear reader, is better known to us as "Curt." Tall, with broad shoulders, finely developed limbs, light hair, and a well-formed countenance, he is a living specimen of Gibson's ideal of a man. His great muscular strength and powers of endurance have made him a favorite 'Varsity line man for the past two seasons of rough football. Like his friend, Landis, Miller is a good student of great ambitions. German is his especial delight; he never fails to get the highest kind of mark from Dr. Wackernagel. Besides, he is much interested in matters pertaining to religion. He is absorbed in mission work, and teaches a German Bible class. His ideas of amusement are very staid and sober; on several occasions he has teased inebriated foreigners, but to our knowledge this is the extreme limit to which he ever goes.

Miller is studying with a view to the ministry; the above-named characteristics, together with the fact that he possesses a strong set of lungs, lead us to believe that he has chosen wisely, and he has our best wishes. Honest, upright, of great common sense and fortitude—in fact, an all-around capital fellow, he will undoubtedly be an honor to any profession he may choose to enter.

"Frame your mind to mirth and merriment,

"He that is of a merry heart hath a continual feast."—Proverbs.

This will introduce to you our worthy Editor-in-Chief, who was chosen for this position because of his eminently literary and artistic bent of mind. In the course of a number of years he has gathered together a great deal of useful experience in various lines. We must mention in particular the store of jokes he has collected with such care. These jokes (which are of assorted ages and lengths) are of such a great number that he always has one suitable for each and every possible occasion that may arise, with several as a reserve stock in case of encore. This immense store of witticisms has served to sharpen his naturally brilliant intellect, so that he has won fame as an inveterate "knocker" and punster.

Our subject is a man of many activities: Plays the piano at Glee Club concerts with distinction; teaches a very large Sunday School class of charming young ladies, in whom he takes an almost fatherly interest; and so on and so forth, the various other spheres in which he dabbles being too numerous to mention. But it must be conceded that whatever he does he does well; this leads us to prophesy for him that which we all wish him—a useful and successful life.

PAUL ANDREW PUTRA,
Lansford, Pa.

"Why, what a madcap hath heaven lent us here!"—Shakespeare.

"His modesty is a candle to his merit."—Fielding.

Paul Putra, the "Rough and Ready," "Diamond Dick" or "Jack Harkaway" of this institution, is better known as "Purity." Here we have an "Apollo of Modern Athletics." Football, baseball, and basketball he plays equally well, and we find but one fault: He plays them all alike—extremely rough. In football he has shown himself a master of the game; this is doubtless due to the fact that he practises daily on the rest of us. He has done some good work in baseball, and played quite an important part in the capturing of the basketball trophy for our class.

However, this is only one side of his college life; he also takes a vital interest in his studies—in fact, this interest is second only to the interest he takes in Athletics. As do most college men, he has certain dislikes and prejudices, which, however, unreasoning, are yet firmly fixed. We have it at first hand that some of Putra's happiest hours at this institution were spent under Dr. Bauman in Mathematics; and by dint of hard labor and repeated efforts he has acquired a passing fair knowledge in this subject. In Physics none surpasses him, save Tanaka and about twenty others. He is fond of the classics, and has made several star recitations. But above all, Putra is whole-souled and sincere; by virtue of these and many other good qualities he has won the respect and appreciation, not only of his classmates, but of the whole school.

"Let us have wine and women, mirth and laughter, Sermons and soda-water the day after."—Byron.

Reisner is a man of unstable disposition, and has a different set of characteristics for each mood. When sawing the air at the Mission he appears to be nothing less than a student from the Theological Seminary; but when raising Cain in the German classroom he is an inspiration of the Darwinian Theory of Evolution. But these examples are extremes. Go, accompany the haughty Juniors to each of their recitation rooms and observe how Karl gets through a recitation. Ye diplomats of the earth, behold and rejoice, for he is worthy to rank with you! In Logic, Psychology, and Religion he has never flunked; nor yet in German and French. When allowed a chance he can argue anything from any point of view without previous preparation; hence, in these studies he comes through with flying colors. But in Greek, Latin, Physics, and Mathematics his mastercraft avails little; therefore, he devotes to these branches the greater part of his time, pursuing with especial earnestness the study of Mathematics. We would not, however, wish to convey the impression that Karl devotes all his time to study. On the contrary, he is interested in many other things—especially women and jewelry. Chumming as he does with Mac, his interest in the fair sex is always at fever heat, each lovely face setting up renewed palpitations in his roomy heart. His interest in jewelry is of a more sordid nature. At stated intervals he goes rapping from door to door bearing fresh samples of the jeweler's art from the paternal establishment in far-off Lancaster.

"Oh, blest with temper whose unclouded ray
Can make to-morrow as cheerful as to-day."—Pope.

"I've lived and loved."—Coleridge.

"A lion among the ladies is a most fearful thing."—Shakespeare.

Schmoyer believes in the proverb that "He who finds a girl finds a good thing." Flowers and girls? In his mind they go together; for, given the former, the latter is a necessity. As to his studies, they are second-hand matters. Due attention to the fair sex is paramount in his curriculum.

As first assistant compiler and editor of the Lutheran Church Almanac—besides other interests at Macungie—Arthur has established an enviable record. There are interests and interests which claim a man's attention. Such interests must receive their due amount of attention; and after a man has experienced early morning returns falling thru coal-chutes, and in some cases held for all-night sessions, he well deserves the name "veteran" in his particular line.

Schmoyer has not made many touchdowns for the College football team; his stolen bases and home runs for the baseball nine can easily be counted; nor has he displaced anyone on the basketball and track teams; but he makes an A+ at all social functions; he has never been conditioned for his Latin conjugation of the verb "amo."

Explain a matter to Arthur, and when he asserts his knowledge and understanding of it with, "O, I see," you can depend upon it that he does see.

One of the busiest workers in the class is Shirey. Of medium height, rather dark in color, sedate in carriage, and under ordinary circumstances a quiet chap, his personality is very attractive. He is convinced that his main business at the present is to gather a rich fund of information and experience for future use, disdaining to waste time in frivolities as do those of us who are less sombre. Persuaded that wide reading is the certain road to culture, he reads much—confining himself almost exclusively, however, to dusty remnants of Elizabethan and pre-Elizabethan times. He is preparing to enter the ministry, and hence is especially eager for experience which he may be able to use in that calling. Together with Bechtold, Beidler, Reisner, and others, he was instrumental in getting the Mission of St. George by the Duck Farm under way; here he frequently holds forth in abysmal polemic discourses to the assembled crowds. He has in addition taken active interest in the Missionary Society, and has been a leading light in the same. The class chose him as one of the Business Managers of the CIARLA; here his pretty knack for cultivating confidential relations with anyone, whether above his station or beneath it, helped him along nicely.

In a word, Shirey is conscientious and upright, possessing of both these virtues a sufficiency for personal use, and enough to spare to erring friends.

The picture that now greets your admiring eyes, gentle reader, represents a young man, handsome and neat, and a good fusser. He is known for his caustic wit and withering sarcasm, both of which he hands out abundantly when occasion offers. His sharp wit, however, never makes him disagreeable. Although determined and resolute in most things, he was long in deciding whether he wanted a Classical or a Scientific training, but eventually fixed upon the former. His chief diversion used to be teaching a Sunday School class, whose enrollment he increased from three to twelve.

Shupp is quite a society man. Girls in "pink uniforms" also look good to him. He is known by two names, "Big Shupp" and "Asia Minor." "The College Man in Business" is his favorite oratorical theme, "Five Hundred" his favorite sport, and "Minna von Barnhelm" is the book he reads most. His plans for the future are somewhat hazy. Here again he is deliberate in making a choice. He might become an aluminum "Magnate," or an expert stenographer, or a barrister. We think he'll most likely be a corporation lawyer—or Bryan's running mate in 1936. Shupp often helps Morning out by explaining and applying his abstruse jokes which would otherwise fall flat.

Roy F. Shupp is one of the best athletes at Muhlenberg College. Of medium size, sturdy build, and great strength, he has given an excellent account of himself in all the various College sports. He was captain of the basketball team which won for us the inter-class championship. He is a good student, and is believed to do a great deal of reading on the side. But he nevertheless finds time to cultivate the social side of College life. He is a first-row member of the Orpheum Club, although he occasionally visits the Lyric also. He may sometimes be seen in the company of different girls, but they are always certain to be small-sized ones. Because of attractions of this kind he does all his shopping at two particular stores, at one of which the postcard counter forms the locus of attraction. These, however, are only temporary infatuations; his taste is refined and exacting, and it will be merely a question of days until new objects of admiration will be discovered.

Shupp is an all-around good fellow; he can tell a good story, and, what contributes even more to his popularity, he can listen to one. Because of his genial nature he can get along with all classes and conditions of people.

Any man who comes from a land of chrysanthemums and cherry-blossoms ought to be an optimist. Well, "Tonny" is one. Shrewd, quick, obliging, agreeable always, and with a passiveness characteristic of the far East, he has a host of strong friends. Although not honored by election to the CIARLA Board, he has unselfishly labored to make our annual a success. Unfortunately it was too late to place his picture on the Staff group, but fortunately not too late to recognize the value of his work by placing his name with the others.

As a student, Tanaka shines particularly in Math., where his keen mind stands him in good stead. Religion is his pet study(?). In Physics he is surpassed only by the sharks, Ernst, Gernet and Reisner. He plays tennis and Hassenpeffer in the English language, but shoots pool in Japanese.

He and Putra are playmates. Dr. W. objects to their antics, because he wants "no international conflicts." Tanaka's cigarettes are all imported from Japan, but his pipe and tobacco are strictly American. He has no ill feelings against the Orpheum, and at times the Lyric meets entirely with his approval. A pastmaster of Jiu Jitsu, Tonny made excellent use of this art in our battles with 1909 and 1911, and his share in our many victories was no small one.

This man Urich is one of the more prominent men of the class; we regret that we have such a limited space in which to set before you his various activities. He usually makes very good recitations, keeping well up front in all his classes. His modesty is too real to be assumed; it is seldom, if ever, that he volunteers an answer to a general question from a professor. Industrious almost to a fault, he has entered into many prize contests, narrowly escaping winning in several cases; this spirit of industry is combined with a pertinacity which enables him to struggle against all obstacles. As a tenor on the Glee Club he has given excellent service; by assiduous daily practise his voice is kept in the prime of condition. A fervent Democrat, he has ably supported Reisner in several debates with Prof. Haasz. Then, to mention another of his interests, he is very susceptible to femininity; not only does he make frequent calls, but he occasionally has whole flocks of girls calling upon him.

To sum up, Urich is diplomatic, conscientious, impulsive, and generous to a fault; full of class spirit of an unusual kind and to an unusual degree. We are informed that the ministry is the goal of his ambition; in this profession all the above-mentioned traits—especially his knowledge of the eternal feminine—will mean much to the carving out of a successful career.

This black-haired man with the dark penetrating eyes has seen the return of the bluebirds in the spring oftener than any other student in College; but he certainly is with us for all the intellectual benefit he can get out of the course. After teaching in the public schools for eight years, he has become rich in experience, positive in his convictions, and is willing to appreciate anything that is good. He is not athletic, and athletics have no charms for him. He is very unlike the rest of us in one respect; he can keep awake in Pedagogy recitations without the least effort. Aside from this innate affection for Pedagogy, he is also a "shark" in Psychology and Philosophy, and to separate himself still further from his classmates, he says that "Anglo-Saxon" is the only real thing in the English course.

Leon! Yes, he is a lion in the way he devours the indigestible food given us in Dr. Haas' classroom; but he is an awful mistake for a lion if it refers to disposition. Meek and gentle as a lamb.

A final word about Leon. It's a secret, remember! He's engaged. It's real mean to tell it, but—well, here it is. Not long ago he said: "After graduation there will be a very happy moment in my life; I can hardly wait; she is waiting for me now."

This lean, quiet, and bashful member of "1910" has always taken first prize in the silence race. Ever since he was matriculated in the fall of '06, he has not disturbed anyone by boisterous talking or anything of that kind. He hailed from Hellertown when he first entered Muhlenberg, but on account of the noisy disposition of the Hellertown inhabitants his parents moved to the quiet town of Emaus.

He goes to Emaus every night, for no other reason but to sleep, and still he acts sleepy in the classroom. He recites in the same tone in which Huyett and Horn generally whisper. It actually seems as though nothing short of an earthquake or an A+ in History could scare him into activity. He can do anything that does not demand exertion or require a man to get out of a snail gait. As for Werner, give him something that can be played with the soft pedal.

The subject of this sketch, with the long name of Nathan Benjamin Yoder Yerger, takes a very deep interest in all class affairs outside of athletics. He is one of the Business Managers of our CIARLA, and certainly is a hustler in everything he undertakes. He came to College in the fall of '04, but left after a short time for some unknown reason, which, he says, wasn't homesickness. He returned in the fall of '06, but there is still some longing in his heart which takes him to Oley quite frequently.

Nathan's favorite study is religion, which is always in evidence, both within and without the classroom. Because of his Bostonese accent he is locally appreciated as a speaker, having even been invited to speak at the Griesemersville mission.

Since he is engaged, he stays in his room nearly all the time, except when he goes to church or is looking for "ads" for the CIARLA. He is practical enough to take advantage of many "short cuts" to knowledge, and is also a blue ribbon winner at telling Pennsylvania German stories.

Here is a lad who does not indulge in circumlocutions of speech, but speaks with a directness which is occasionally startling. If the dictionary and the Bible fail to supply him with a sufficient vocabulary, he does not hesitate to go beyond that source. His accomplishments are not limited, by any means: he is an actor, an athlete, and a student. He very ably took one of the important characters in the Freshman play, played on the College football and Class basketball teams, and took the prize for highest average in his Sophomore year.

When he isn't imitating some of the characteristic facial expressions of Mephistopheles, he is best described by——????!! or anything else not able to be understood. His disposition is such a changeable one, that during an entire week he can imitate a barbarian of the ancient world, and on Sunday he does the work of a faithful missionary. He says the most important discovery ever made by him was, that one of his ancestors was a notorious river pirate in early German History. His piratical nature has been most evident since he was operated on for appendicitis. What a pity we can't restore the appendix! Woe unto the man who awakens the expletive center of his brain!

WHO of the Class of 1911 did not hail with enthusiasm the opening of our Sophomore year? Back we came eager to begin a new epoch in the history of our class at Muhlenberg, and well aware that this year would be the crucial period in our development as a class along all lines.

Of course, the first matter to claim our attention was the education (?) of the Freshmen who were fully as green and uninitiated as our imagination had pictured them. They did not cause us a great deal of trouble as they seemed to recognize from the start that it was best to conform to all the rules we laid down for them. When we met them in the annual football game we were defeated as they were fortunate in having quite a number of experienced men who afterwards became 'Varsity material. In basketball, however, the Freshmen openly acknowledged our supremacy without even the formality of placing a team on the floor to oppose us.

What elated the members of '11 most, however, was the manner in which we kept the Freshmen completely in the dark concerning our banquet which was held at the Windsor, Philadelphia. Many and awful were the threats and predictions that were heard as to what would happen when the Sophs would "try" to leave College for their "feed." It is needless for me to go into detail as to how we fooled them and didn't go, and then how we fooled them again and did go.

That banquet was an affair I'm sure none of us will ever forget. The only regrettable feature was the fact that quite a number of the members of the class were ill and could not be present.

Of all our achievements as a class there is one that stands out pre-eminent, to which we can always point with justifiable pride: We began the publication of a College Calendar. This is a new idea at Muhlenberg, and we hope that hereafter every Sophomore class will consider it one of their duties to issue such a calendar.

While we have been rather unfortunate, because of the fact that a number of our men "fell by the wayside," and others were compelled to leave temporarily on account of illness, yet to counteract this misfortune we have been strengthened by a number of new men during the year, so that on the whole we can well feel proud of what we have accomplished, and can look forward with confidence to the remaining two years of our existence as a class at Muhlenberg.

FRESHMAN CLASS HISTORY.

THE ceremonial opening for the 42nd collegiate year of that stately and universally renowned edifice of learning, Muhlenberg College, occurred September 10, 1908. The influx of new students was as great as, yes even greater than, in former years; for at this time entered that magnificent and brilliant addition, the Class of 1912. This class has already attained numerous honors and created about themselves a halo of glory and distinction. On account of the non-appearance of the Sophomores for the annual bowl fight, the garlands of that victory rest upon our intellectual brows. In addition to this, although we hate to "rub it in," did we not defeat in football this aggregation of would-be superiors by an overwhelming score of 28 to 0?

But before another cycle of the sun had been completed we again distinguished ourselves in unprecedented fashion. While it was still our initial day at the College, just shortly before midnight we left the dormitories in a body to pursue the Sophs and remove from the trees and telegraph poles those unsightly posters deriding us. This occupation employed the members of the class till dawn, in spite of the fact that nineteen of our brave warriors were apprehended by Allentown's "Guardians of Peace." But bravery, such as ours, can never be suppressed by threats, fines or punishments. Consequently that night some of our valiant lads with glaring posters, vehemently declaring our highest contempt for our lords (?) and their "Peremptory Mandates," made Allentown seem like one vast billboard. While thus engaged the police force swarmed down upon us and what is MIRABILISSIMUM DICERE they seized two, who, after being most carefully shackled, were very impressively and with due reverence conducted by a heavy guard to a luxurious cell in the Allentown Police Station.

In athletics we have shown up well. What our might and valor have done in 'Varsity football is shown by the number of our men who have received "M's."

In basketball little chance was given us to star, as the faculty disbanded our team immediately after our second game.

As actors we have conducted ourselves creditably. Our play, "Nathan Hale," was a great success.

In the classroom we are distinguished by our brilliancy, and also by our aptness at creating all sorts of noises and general commotion. Out of thirty-eight men only one of us was unable to stand the pace at which the class as a whole make a part of themselves that knowledge and information so freely and generously extended to us by our efficient professors.

After such a brilliant record as is here given, we do not hesitate to predict that we will continue to distinguish ourselves in every phase of College life. Although we are prophesying on a "sure thing," we do not wish to appear egotistical and profess to know it all, so we allow you to judge for yourselves what honors we will win in the future.

As a class we intend to put forth our best efforts to entirely fulfill the prophecy we have just made.

HISTORY.

THE Classical Club of Muhlenberg College was organized on the evening of March 25, 1909, at a meeting of Junior and Senior classical students in Sophronia Hall. This organization, which was first proposed by Prof. Robert C. Horn, is expected to form an important addition to the cultural advantages of our College. All the work is entirely voluntary; and contrary to what might be expected, the fellows enter into the spirit of the thing right nobly. Notwithstanding the short space of time since actual work began, the "Plutus" of Aristophanes has been read and discussed. However, all that has been attempted thus far has been merely to lay the firm foundations of an association of this kind, assured that something so necessary will easily win the support which it deserves. Thus far the meetings have been held in Sophronia Hall. At these meetings about one hour is devoted to assigned work; the remainder of the evening is given over to social conversation, music, etc., and during this time refreshments are served.

Several members of the faculty have joined the ranks: Professor Horn, who proposed the organization; Professor Haasz, and Professor Fritsch.

Following is a list of members:

HISTORY.

THE John Lear Biological Society was formally organized on October 8, 1908. The object of this society is to promote the Scientific Department by an effort to obtain more Scientific books and magazines, and to create a desire on the part of its members to make researches in the realm of science. Meetings are held semi-monthly, at which time several of the members deliver orations or read papers on some important theory of Biology. A general discussion by the members follows, thus making each meeting helpful to all. Our Honorary President, Dr. John Lear, is in attendance at all meetings and participates in the exercises.

The spirit with which the members enter into the work of the society can be noted by the numerous articles published in The Muhlenberg this year. After a most strenuous year of work in the society, the members desired to have some social affair. The result was that on May 10, 1909, we attended a banquet at a nearby hostelry. Dr. Lear was unanimously elected toastmaster. He called on a number of the members to respond to toasts. The whole affair was a credit to the College, as well as to the Biological Society.

We believe this first year to have been a successful one and hope that the John Lear Biological Society will always be a vital factor in the life of Muhlenberg College.

SOME COMMENTS ON THE SEASON.

BY CAPTAIN ALBERT.

CAPTAIN ALBERT.

THE football season, with regard to victories and defeats, was a disastrous blow to the lovers of that sport at Muhlenberg. But with these defeats, there was shown the need of learning a few lessons which no doubt will be helpful, as well as instructive.

The writer has felt it advisable to point out the necessities which the last season pointed out as advisable. They are five in number.

(1) A definite system of training. No athletic team expects to do honest and conscientious work unless it is in proper physical condition. To play a strenuous game, to run a hard race without proper training is folly. One's life is in jeopardy and the constitution is ruined. College athletics, to be a success, must be properly conducted, and in this the health and well-being of the athlete is of vital importance. Regular hours for eating, sleeping, recreation, and study are necessary. There must be a systematic arrangement, and all rules should be rigidly enforced. To endanger one's physical health is immoral and involves the high-ethical principle of right conduct.

(2) Daily coaching is necessary. Failure of a team in any sport, whatever, is oftentimes due to lack of daily coaching. We recognize this fact in our own coaching system. Monday and Tuesday the coach was absent, and the majority of the men did not feel obligated to sacrifice those evenings for the welfare of the College and for its activities. The men thus were physically unable to withstand the effects of a hard practice on the following evenings, and thus lessened their chances for a good game on Saturday. As long as men, therefore, do not feel it their duty to work for their college voluntarily, then use stringent measures and have daily coaching.

(3) Lack of confidence and spirit of indifference. The team that lacks confidence in itself, that lacks confidence in its trainer and coach will never be a success. Confidence is necessary and the coach is the one to inspire it in his men and not take it out of them. In close relation to confidence is the spirit of indifference. Where there is indifference there is no confidence. In student life no lessons are mastered where there is indifference, no undertaking succeeds where indifference holds sway. So no football team, no athletic team will be a success unless indifference is rooted out and confidence is inspired in the men—a confidence which never wavers at obstacles, no matter how insurmountable they may seem.

(4) Loyalty must be fostered. It gives the greatest impulse and impetus to the upbuilding and establishment of any industry. It is needed in every undertaking and must be fostered with care and zeal.

College athletics will never reach a golden age, unless supported loyally by the student-body. The presence of every man is required for the rehearsing of songs and yells and for the rousing cheer that sends the team to victory. Besides victory there can be but one thing—defeat—and a good winner must also be a good loser. Defeat should bring out the qualities of true and noble loyalty which balks at no misfortune. A true college man never slurs his Alma Mater, but speaks well of her, even when he is not in perfect accord with her policies. Grievances must have redress and loyalty is one of the foundation stones upon which the superstructure of greatness must be erected. The strongest tie that a college has to bind her sons to her is true, patriotic loyalty tarnished by no dross of malicious and dissatisfied conduct. A student must have a noble sense of duty, and labor for the best interests of his Alma Mater. The churlish fellow and the snob have no place in the assembly of those who are expending unremunerative energy with undying zeal for the institution which they revere, which they call their Alma Mater. Loyalty needs a strong and encouraging uplift, and if it can be seen that the students of Muhlenberg have a strong love and attachment for her, she has in store a glorious future. “If you can't boost, don't knock.”

(5) A strong Athletic Association. The four necessities before-mentioned have not been realized, while the fifth is a reality and shows marked development. The Alumni and friends supported the College loyally the past year and it is to their untiring efforts that there is now a chartered Athletic Association. A new organization has been formed with a constitution and by-laws, and thus the financial aid, which was lacking for many years has received a new birth. There is a Board of Directors and Committees on each sport, which look to the interests of all concerned. The true spirit of loyalty in this line has at last asserted itself and promises great things along athletic lines for Greater Muhlenberg.

Long may she live, Our Muhlenberg!

Long may she live, Our Muhlenberg!

Long live, long live, Our Muhlenberg!

CAPTAIN ALBERT began his football career as end on the 'Varsity during his Freshman year. Although he starred in that position, the coaches found better use for him at quarter, which position he very efficiently filled last season. He was inclined to become just a little "flustered" at times, but his earnestness and physical endurance quite compensated for this. Although small in stature, he had grit and nerve to spare. Albert excelled especially in running back punts, tackling on secondary defense, and making quarterback runs, his work in this line often evoking storms of applause. We regret that this season is his last at Muhlenberg.

THE "M" MEN.

JOHN ABERLY, '10, by good work as a Scrub for two years, has developed into a good fullback. When it was reported that Smith, last year's fullback, couldn't play on account of illness, there was dismay in camp, until Aberly came to the rescue and very capably filled the position. By good earnest work he developed rapidly in line plunging and punting, sharing with Shelly in the latter. His punts were frequently hard to handle. Although handicapped by lack of weight, he made every pound count.

BUTZ, '09, right end, was possibly the fastest man on our team. His speed enabled him to get down the field very rapidly, either to recover the punt or down the opponent in his tracks. "Allie" figured more prominently in that particular play than any other man on the team. He won a place on the 'Varsity when a Freshman, and held his end for the remaining three years of his course. Always a spirited player, Butz filled his position as one does who knows the game.

BOSSARD, '09, as center, could not be excelled. Although of medium weight, he was never outplayed by an opposing center. His passing of the ball was always accurate, steady, and consistent. On kicks he was down the field with the ends, and was able several times to recover punts fumbled by the opponents. On the defensive he played a full two yards back of the line, and was particularly good at intercepting short forward passes and breaking up end runs. He always followed the ball closely, and for steadiness was in a class by himself.

HAUSER, '09, left end, the efficient handler of the forward pass, is without a peer in this line at College. His two seasons of faithful work as a Scrub enabled him also to break up interference like a veteran. He was very fast in getting down the field on punts, good at blocking and interfering, and always kept his eye on the ball. He had grit to spare, and, though handicapped by injuries, remained in the game throughout the season. We trust that his successor will be equally competent.

MILLER, '10, left guard, was always dependable. He plays the game, not because he's in love with it, but because he considers it his duty to the College—"the personification of college spirit," to quote from "Pop" Reese. Under the efficient coaching of Drs. Barclay and Bull, he has become our best guard. He plays a strong, clean game, and, while not as aggressive perhaps as some, he was always firm and unyielding on defence. Few gains were made through left guard last season. Miller will be in the game again next year.

CHARLES COLEMAN, '12, "utility player," proved his mettle last season, and one or two more years will round him out in fine shape. He has played at different times the positions of fullback, halfback, center, and tackle, and all with credit. There's nothing sensational in his playing, but it is remarkably steady. Always in form, he was ready any time to "sub," and it was in this way that he managed to play the required number of halves to win an "M." He'll very likely be a strong man in the regular line-up next year.

REISNER, '10, right tackle, figured to best advantage on the offence, tearing holes in the line of the opposing team, and in this way helping the backfield men. While somewhat weak on the defence, he nevertheless counteracted this slight failing by his ability to get down the field under punts, which in many instances enabled him to recover the ball. Like Butz, he was not quite up to the form in which he played the previous season, but was always ready to learn and could take any amount of gruelling.

PUTRA, '10, the undaunted, indomitable right halfback, is a veritable demon at football. His work, while not lacking on the defensive, is most noticeably aggressive in advancing the ball. He was quick to observe an opening and equally quick to take advantage of it. His gains were made in his own way of twisting and wriggling through the opposition which made him exceptionally hard to tackle. He was very energetic in aiding the fullback plunges. We regret that he was incapacitated by injuries during most of the season.

REED, '09, at left tackle, was without doubt the strongest man on the line. "Pud" came here from Reading High School with a reputation, and it certainly has not diminished any while he wore Muhlenberg football togs. He is handicapped somewhat by a weak knee, but this does not detract from his sensational work. His strong point is his ability to break through and tackle his opponent behind the line and on the offensive to open wide gaps in the opposing line. His loss will be keenly felt.

SHELLY has been declared by many, and justly so, to be the greatest halfback Muhlenberg has ever had. He is an aggressive, cool, and heady player. On him depended the brunt of the work and he never failed to do his duty. His running with the ball, on-side kicks, drop-kicks, punting, and tackling were the features of many games. He was in a class by himself in carrying the ball and was equally competent in assisting a teammate at the same trick. His work on the defensive was excellent and his forward-passes were unusually successful.

SNYDER, '12, the right guard, although practically a novice, played in every game during the season of 1908. He started his football career with a smashed nose, but this only seemed to give him more encouragement. He quickly caught the requirements demanded of a player in his position and developed fairly well as the season advanced. His work last year, together with his physical resources, are capable of marked improvement, and within the next three years we hope to see him one of the best guards on the gridiron.

SHUPP, '10, at halfback, did very creditable work, both this season and last. Notwithstanding the fact that he was one of the lightest men on the team, his grit and good judgment made him one of the most reliable. Besides being a sure tackler, he was exceptionally good at finding openings in the enemy's line. His lack of weight, of course, detracted from his work on the defence, but he was far from being weak. He is expected to furnish good timber for next season's 'Varsity.

SONGS.

(Arranged by Albert and Morning.)

(TUNE: See-Saw.)

Football, Football, here's to the best game of all,
The Welkin will ring when its praises
we sing,
In songs of our College,
Which you must acknowledge
Are ever dearer, dearer than all songs on earth,
Her health we all drink, and we'll evermore think,
Of our Muhlenberg.

(TUNE: Because You're You.)

Rush the ball and win, boys
Never say defeat;
We're right in the swim, boys,
And we can't be beat.
Here we'll give the reason
We all know the game,
So we're sure that Muhlenberg
Upholds her name.

(TUNE: "Down the Field.")

Rush, Rush on down the field,
Fighting for Muhlenberg,
Break thru' old [Medico Chi]
Her strength to defy,
We'll give a long cheer for Coach Bull's men.

We're here to win again,
[Medico Chi] may fight till they die,
But we will win.
[Rah, Rah, Rah, Rah, Rah, Rah.]
(Repeat Chorus.)

(TUNE: "Blow the Smoke Away.")

For Muhlenberg and vict'ry,
Play boys, very hard.
Work hard for a touchdown,
Rush the ball now yard by yard,
Work hard for a victory,
We must win to-day.
(Whistle)
Cardinal and Gray.

(TUNE: "The Waning Honeymoon.")

Muhlenberg, Muhlenberg,
Vict'ry must be ours to-day,
Cardinal and Gray must win,
Muhlenberg.
Better play wins the day,
Jump right in and win the fray
Wave the Cardinal and Gray,
Muhlenberg.

(TUNE: "Cheyenne.")

Touchdown, Touchdown, watch while we make it,
We're scoring, 'mid roaring, and after the victory
We'll sing and shout till our voices give out
For our dear old Muhlenberg.

Oh! It's tackle hard and low, boys,
It's nail 'em where they stand,
Ray, Ray, Ray, for dear old Muhlen-
berg.
And it's every play a gain, boys,
The finest in the land,
Ray, Ray, Ray, for dear old Muhlen-
berg,
Muhlenberg forever, hurrah boys, hurrah,
We are the people, we are, yes, we are,
Then its rush them down the field, boys,
You're got them on the run,
Ray, Ray, Ray, for dear old Muhlen-
berg.

ANNUAL SESSION OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

AT THE annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of Muhlenberg College held on Wednesday afternoon, twenty-three of the thirty members of the Board were present. It was one of the best attended meetings the Board of Directors has had in a number of years. The Secretary of the Board, Rev. W. D. C. Keiter, announced that the necessary $180,000 to secure the $20,000 promised by Andrew Carnegie toward the payment of the $200,000 debt is in hand. The total endowment fund, May 1, 1908, was $216,641.43. This is exclusive of Hon. Charles A. Scheiren's gift of $40,000. The building fund represents a total to May 1, 1908, of $278,359.12. The total expenditures, May 1, 1908, $267,592.54, leaving a balance in the fund of $10,766.58. The current fund to May 1, 1908, shows total receipts of $25,485.31, and the expenditures, $34,927.58, a deficit of $9,442.27.

A committee consisting of Evan B. Lewis, Esq., Philadelphia; Hon. Gustav A. Endlich, Reading; Reuben J. Butz, Esq., Allentown; Rev. Samuel G. Weiskotten, Brooklyn, N. Y., and C. A. Fon Dersmith, Lancaster, was appointed to revise the charter. It was in order to simplify matters, and eliminate the "stock company" features of the institution, which is not being conducted for the purpose of financial gain, that this committee was selected. As the Allentown Preparatory School will have to vacate its quarters in the old Muhlenberg Building, in two years, the Executive Committee was authorized to devise plans for a new building at another location.

Revs. J. Charles Rausch, of Allentown, and W. D. C. Keiter, of Bethlehem, and D. D. Fritch, M. D., were appointed a committee to prepare a suitable resolution on the death of A. W. Geiger, of Norristown, a member of the Board, who passed away during the fiscal year just closed.

The recently elected member of the Board, who succeeds the late Mr. Geiger, Major Enos R. Artman, of Philadelphia, was present.

The former officers and committees were named for the coming year, as follows: Hon. Gustav A. Endlich, LL. D., President of the Board; Rev. W. D. C. Keiter, Secretary; Oscar F. Bernheim, Treasurer and Registrar, Allentown, Pa.

Central Executive Committee—Reuben J. Butz, Esq., Chairman; Rev. W. D. C. Keiter, Secretary; Hon. Gustav A. Endlich, LL. D., D. D. Fritch, M. D., Rev. J. A. W. Haas, D. D., ex-officio; Thomas J. Koch, Charles F. Mosser, Rev. J. C. Rausch, Rev. James O. Schlenker, Howard S. Seip, D. D. S., and Edward M. Young.

Examination Committee—Rev. E. T. Horn, D. D., LL. D., Chairman; Rev. W. D. C. Keiter, Rev. M. C. Horine, D. D., Rev. J. C. Rausch and Rev. J. O. Schlenker.

The Board confirmed the appointment of the following new members of the faculty, made during the past year by the Executive Committee:

Robert R. Fritsch, A. M., Instructor in German; George N. Haasz, A. B., graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, Instructor in English and History; George O. Barclay, D. D. S., of Lafayette College, Professor of Physical Education; Wm. Smith, Instructor of Gymnastics, and Willard P. Kline, A. M., M. D., Examining Physician.

Following the adjournment of the session, the members of the Board were entertained at the home of President J. A. W. Haas, D. D., on the campus, and took supper as the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Haas.

They indulge in a little waltz. More greeting. He sings: "Believe me if all these endearing young charms." An unexpected serenade. The serenaders invited in and have a jolly time, including a clog dance on the kitchen floor. After they retire she sings: "I can not say good-bye." He joins in a duett. One more kiss interrupted by the Steeple clock. The old man appears. Consternation and rapid exit.

 9. Gems from "The Red Mill," Herbert.
 10. Fantasia—"Triumphale," Rubenstein.
 Synopsis: This magnificent Overture Fantasia was composed in commemoration of the memorable invasion of Moscow by Napoleon in 1812. It is a wonderful tone painting of this public disaster. After the introduction, depicting the fear and terror of the inhabitants, is heard the Russian hymn, followed by the prayer of the people for victory. The great struggle for supremacy, the historic burning of the city, and the flight of the Russians are vividly portrayed. The defeat of the French and the triumphant return of the Russians into the city is announced by the fanfare of trumpets and drums leading into and concluding the work with the majestic Russian hymn.

SPEAKERS, DELEGATES AND STUDENTS WHO ATTENDED THE STUDENTS' MISSIONARY CONFERENCE,
October 18th and 19th, 1908.

STUDENTS' MISSIONARY CONFERENCE,

October 18th and 19th, 1908,

held under the auspices of the Bible Study and Missionary Society of Muhlenberg College.

TOWARDS the close of the collegiate year of 1908, the members of the Missionary Society felt the need of calling a Missionary Conference of the students of Lutheran Colleges and Seminaries. A committee composed of Messrs. Bechtold, Shirey and Ulrich was appointed to ascertain the sentiment in the other institutions. The replies which were received were so encouraging that they felt justified in issuing a call for a two days' conference to be held at Allentown on October 18 and 19, 1908. During the summer the committee with the aid of Dr. Haas succeeded in procuring prominent speakers to address the Conference.

On Sunday, October 18th, the Conference was opened in St. John's Church. The institutions which were represented were Gettysburg College, Bethany College, Wittenberg College, Susquehanna University, Mt. Airy Theological Seminary, Gettysburg Theological Seminary, Hartwick Seminary, and Allentown Preparatory School.

At a short business meeting held on the 19th, it was decided to keep alive the movement. Invitations were extended by Gettysburg College and Susquehanna University to the Conference to hold its next meeting at their institution. The general committee, appointed to decide the time and place of the next meeting, has accepted the invitation of Gettysburg College, but has not decided the time.

OUR FRIEND, "THE SQUIRE."

MR. WILLIAMSON, or "Squire," as he is more commonly called, was born in Green County, Pa., February 18, 1849. His early life was spent at Mooresburg, Northampton County, where he helped his father and at odd times went to school. At nineteen he started work on the railroad at Treichler's. Later on he became foreman or section "boss" at Laury's, which position he held for a number of years. In '78 he came to Allentown, where he became successively a dairyman and miller. As his health was failing, he desired a change of work, and, on learning that Muhlenberg was in need of a janitor, applied. Being the twenty-seventh applicant, he had no hopes of getting the position, but thru the excellent recommendation given to Dr. Seip by ex-Mayor Allison, who had learned to know him at the rolling mill, he secured the position, and he has held it ever since. This year is his twentieth spent in the service of the College. "Squire" is probably the best liked personage about the place, even exceeding many of the Profs. in popularity among the boys. He is a friend to everybody and shows no partiality. Whenever he can do a favor for one of the fellows he can be depended upon to do it faithfully.

No one appreciates jokes and tricks more than he does. His work about the place is carrying the mails, ringing the bells, taking charge of express packages, and looking after affairs in general.

We regret that he is getting old, but he can be depended upon to serve us as long as he is able. He says he is lonely without the boys. As a walking cyclopedia of information on Muhlenberg's history for the past twenty years, "Squire" is a formidable rival of Dr. Ochsenford's "History of Muhlenberg." The most responsible position "Squire" occupies at present is that of foreman of the Cleaning Committee.

O woman! in our hours of ease,
Uncertain, coy, and hard to please,
And variable as the shade
By the light quivering aspen made;
When pain and anguish wring the brow,
A ministering angel thou!—Scott: Marmion.

Vice is a monster of so frightful mien,
As, to be hated, needs but to be seen,
But seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace.—Pope: Essay on Man.

Some wag has combined the first two lines of Scott's poem with the last two of Pope's with this almost startling result:

"O woman in our hours of ease,
Uncertain, coy, and hard to please,
But seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace."

THE COMEDY OF THE BOARDING HOUSE

OR

"DINNER AND SUPPER,"

A One-act Farce.

PLACE: "Granny's."

TIME: Every Day.

DRAMATIS PERSONAE.

EVERETT—a Sparrow.

ERNST—a Spider.

TOEBKE—Silence Incarnate.

URICH—Hot-air Personified.

Wrestling Trio { SHELLY, } Inseparable Two.
PUTRA, }
{ REED, } Two more Inseparables.
STETLER, }

KLINE—Modest Freshman.

NONAMAHER—Philosophical Lover.

SHUPP, R.—Loquacious Junior.

FINK—Mimic.

KEEVER—Liar and General Nuisance.

JANKE—The Very Essence of Purity.

Boarders and other grub slingers.

Enter Everett and Ernst.

EVERETT: "Where is the Ladies' Home Journal?"

ERNST (sarcastically): "Over there. Haven't you got any eyes?"

(Terrible silence for fifteen minutes.) Enter Toebke. (More silence.) Enter Urich and others. (Silence becomes oppressive.) Enter Shelly and Putra.

PUTRA: "Come on, Bill, I want to muss your hair."

SHELLY: "Go 'way! I'll thrash you like I did last week!"

PUTRA: "Gee, Bill, but I love you!" (hugging Bill).

SHELLY: "Don't be so demonstrative."

(Putra seats himself at the piano. Melodious(?) strains fill the air, in consequence of which the babies begin to cry)

PUTRA: "Stop your scrapping, Freshmen."

(The Freshmen throw him off the piano stool.)

Enter Reed and Stetler. Immediately the room is in an uproar. General chorus of "clear the ring." Then occurs a "triple duel" between Shelly, Putra and Reed.

SHELLY: "Stop—pulling—my—hair!"

REED: "Gr-r-r-r-r—"

PUTRA: "Ah Bill, now be good!"

Result of the scrap: Chairs turned inside out, carpet heaped up in middle of room. Shelly's hair dishevelled.

Soggy Kline is implored, by some hungry mortal, to "hit up the piano." Kline says he doesn't know anything. However, he accepts the chance and immediately proves his statement.

In order to stop the noise dinner or supper is announced.

NONAMAKER (aside): "Now is my turn." (Aloud): "Gentlemen, if you don't agree that woman is a God-sent blessing you are too dense to exist among us; too ignorant for civilized society." (He then proceeds to give a discourse on the beauty and general loveliness of women. Men in love can do this. Stetler corroborates all his statements.)

SHUPP: "When you get thru, Nonny, let me know; I want to open my ears."

NONNY: "Now, don't get sarcastic. You're too dense, too insignificant to speak like that to me, a senior.

Here KEEVER begins: "Fellows, you may not believe it, but I lifted 1,500 pounds in the gym. the other day.

WUNDER: "Where did you get the strength?"

KEEVER: "I had most of it, but I got some by drinking Horlick's Malted Milk. I always have them 'made up' with three eggs in them, and"—(but here Kever is threatened with immediate extinction if he doesn't desist. He finishes his meal in silence.)

At this juncture a loud hee-haw is heard. Investigation proves that it is Reed, who explains that he is "laughing at Fink's joke." Fink had cracked one fifteen minutes before.

At intervals of three minutes URICH exclaims, "Cut the comedy!" and the inevitable SPIDER saws out, "Oh, go chase yourself!"

Dessert is served.

REED: "Could I have another cup of coffee?"

SHELLY: "Please give me another gallon of water."

Exit all but Kever, who saunters up the hill fifteen or twenty minutes later.

THE TRAGEDY OF THE BOARDING HOUSE

“WHO SPILLED THE APPLE BUTTER?”

DRAMATIS PERSONAE.

HAUSER—a modest baseball pitcher.

BARINGER—quiet and careful, but unfortunate.

RUPP—inclined to jest.

REISNER,

HUYETT,

YERGER,

MORNING,

MILLER,

WOHLSEN,

} Would-be jesters.

McCORMICK—a very scientific man.

WHITTEKER—thinks much, says little.

HORN—a believer in co-education, Bryanism, etc.

BIEBER—not from Shamrock, but Kutztown.

Freshman Table in the background.

Time: Any Day. Place: The House Across the Way.

Scene I. The ante-room. Enter ALBERT, who at once pounces upon a back number of the Ladies' Home Journal. Enter HAUSER, returning the latest copy which he borrowed the evening before. Hauser looks ill. Seven or eight more enter.

HAUSER (very suddenly): “Oh! but I’m sick!!”

No one looks surprised or asks what ails him.

GRANT: “You fellows ought to take in the Pergola this week. I tell you what it’s simply great, by Gosh if it isn’t!”

HAUSER: “That’s no dream, either. Best show you can strike for the price. They had a very touching scene yesterday—”

REISNER (interrupting): “It couldn’t have been more touching than what I saw.”

HORN (innocently): "What did you see?"

REISNER: "A Senior touching a Junior for a V."

(Groans are heard.)

HAUSER: "Somebody hit him with a brick."

YERGER: "That's a bum one. Now listen to a good story. It's from the story page of the Ladies' Home Journal."

CHORUS OF VOICES: "Cut out the yarns. We've all read them." But Yerger continues reading about a wicked man who presented persimmon juice to his pastor; the minister thought it was wine and a few days later unsuspectingly gave it to his people at communion. They couldn't sing the doxology at the close of the service—they had to whistle it. A few ventured to smile at this story. Then BILL BOWSHER started to tell one on a friend of his, but was interrupted.

WOHLSSEN: "How's the Orpheum this week, Rodge?"

RUPP: "Pretty fair. They have a better bill than last week."

WOHLSSEN (seriously): "I think I'll go this afternoon. I was down at Philadelphia Saturday and Sunday, but didn't take in any shows."

VOICE: "How's everything at Mt. Airy, Pete?"

(Pete blushes guiltily, but further comment is prevented by the announcement of breakfast, and Pete looks relieved.)

MORNING: "Did you see any betting at the Relays, Grant?"

GRANT: "Yes, the Alumni of Penn reached down into their pockets pretty deep—for coppers."

MORNING: "Were there many coppers at the game?"

GRANT: "Not very many; Carlisle didn't run."

(Dead silence.)

YERGER: "I heard a good story the other day." (An attempt is made to interrupt him, but without success, and Yerger continues.) "This is a funeral story. It was at the burial of a woman. The pall bearers were carrying her to the grave when two of them lost their footing and the coffin received a jolt which aroused the woman. Of course, she wasn't buried but lived eight years longer. At her second funeral her husband walked near the pall bearers, and as they neared the grave, he said, 'Steady, boys!'"

VOICE: "Do you know the epitaph he had chiseled on her monument?"

HORN: "No. What did he put on?"

VOICE: "Here lies my wife, much lamented;
She's at rest—and I'm contented."

(At this point REITZ comes in looking very sleepy, and GRANT pokes fun at him. REITZ isn't in the humor to take much jollyng, and maintains grim silence.)

Scene II. (Same as before. Time: Noon.)

The ante-room is filled with hungry-looking individuals, and soon there's a general rush for the table. Above the general din can be heard the jokes (?) of REISNER, YERGER and MORNING and the inane arguments of the Freshmen. In the heat of excitement BARINGER spills the apple butter and confusion reigns supreme. Flushing to the roots of his hair he explains matters to the waitress, who assures him that everything is all right. Alas for BARINGER! The fellows never cease to remind him of his mishap.

Scene III. (Same as Scene II. Time 5.45 P. M.)

The events of the day are rehearsed, comments are made on athletics, and occasionally some songs are sung to the accompaniment of the piano on the second floor.

At the table the conversation turns at times on political topics in which Horn, Hauser and A. Shupp staunchly uphold Bryanism, and Hassler, Miller and Morning defend Republican principles. Reisner, Huyett and Yerger get in a word now and then, but it is hard to tell whether they're partisans or not. At the close of the meal Reisner asks for another cup of tea and the "assembly is adjourned."

AN AFTERNOON WITH COACH BULL ON THE FOOTBALL FIELD.

OF COURSE, the writer of this little monograph must be given due credit for adhering strictly to facts—at least in a few cases. In reproducing expletives, etc., he has been most faithful at all times, excepting, of course, where discretion demanded alteration. The players usually came straggling to the field one by one anywhere from 4 to 4.30 P. M. The captain set a good example in keeping up this system of punctuality by never coming first, but generally managing to get there before signal practice began. The early part of the afternoon was usually spent in limbering up. While Coach Bull was patiently showing Coleman, Albert and Aberly how to catch punts and run them back, and Shelly and Keck how to punt and “put some leg into the ball” the rest of the fellows usually exchanged punts and scrapped for the pigskin.

Some peculiar feats were performed during this limbering-up process. Fink happened to be on the field before anyone else on a certain afternoon, and while no one was looking he neatly placed a drop-kick between the bars from the 68-yard line (so he said). In trying to repeat the performance one afternoon he actually succeeded in accomplishing the stunt from the 22-yard line. While no one was looking Hauser drove the ball 20 yards beyond the goal posts on the kick-off, but when spectators were on the side-lines he made a record that would hardly be worth while mentioning here.

The limbering-up usually lasted about 20 minutes, after which Coach Bull and Captain Albert showed the players how to fall on the ball and tackle the “dummy.” Wohlsen and Beidler were stars at falling on the ball, but no one could tackle the “dummy” like Bauman and Coleman. Coleman, in expressing his candid opinion, said: “I think it would be much more easier to tackle the ‘dummy’ if it hung still. I’m sure I wouldn’t miss it so often if it wasn’t moving all the time.”

The real trouble began when Coach Bull wanted to select two teams for signal and scrimmage practice. The talk ran something like this:

COACH (without looking around)—“Bossard, you step in at center.”

COLEMAN—“He isn’t here.”

COACH—“Where is Bossard?”

BENNETT—“He isn’t feeling well and maybe he won’t play anymore. He says it makes him nervous.” (This nervousness was probably contracted through competition, for shortly after Schumaker’s injury, Bossard returned to the game in full form.)

COACH—"All right, I'll see Bossard. Coleman, you step in at center." (Coleman is tickled.) "Miller and Snyder, play guard; Reisner and Reed, at tackle."

WOHLSEN—"Reed isn't here."

COACH—"Where is Reed?"

WOHLSEN—"He isn't back from the Orpheum yet."

COACH—"All right, 'Coulson,' you take tackle."

WOHLSEN—"Say, Doctor Bull, my name isn't 'Coulson.' It is *Wohl*sen, W-o-h-l-s-e-n."

COACH—"Well, never mind that, you've got to play real football before I care to know your real name. Hauser and Butz, you take the ends."

HAUSER—"My knee is sore and I'd rather not play to-day."

COACH—"That's no excuse. If you want to quit with a little thing like a sore knee you had better turn in your suit. Albert, you take quarter; Shelly and Putra, take the halfbacks, and Aberly, fullback. Keek, you take charge of what is left and form a scrub team, and I'll come around to see you shortly."

Keek takes what is left and starts out to arrange a team somewhat after the fashion of Coach Bull. He places Ammarell at center, A. Shupp and Beidler at guard, Cressman and Shelly at tackle, Fink and Bennett at end, himself at quarterback, R. Shupp and A. N. Butz at halfback, and Henry Shelly at fullback. He then sits down and wonders why the rules don't require thirteen players on a football team so that Fasig and Bauman could play too. Just then Coach Bull spies him and tells him to get busy. Keek runs through several signals, and A. N. Butz pleads with him not to go so fast because it makes him perspire. Keek yields and averages about one signal per minute. Coach Bull's alert eye notices this and he decides to leave the regulars to Captain Albert and expend his patience on the "scrubs."

COACH—"Ammarell, don't pass the ball as though you were handling a boiled egg. Spit on your fingers and throw it back with some ginger."

The ponderous Ammarell obeys. Butz begins to feel that he must show a little action and puts forth his best effort, only to be called down for "running like a woman wearing three flannel petticoats." Butz looked at the coach to make sure he meant him and then proceeded to fall around some more. After a few more signals, Coach Bull called the fellows together for scrimmage. R. Shupp put forth his best effort in kicking off to the regulars, and the ball went far enough to reach Miller, the guard. Miller did not have much experience in carrying the ball and carried it as though he was "carrying a plate of hot buckwheat cakes." His attention was called to the fact at once. Coleman passed the ball and Albert fumbled. Albert, of course, put all the blame on Coleman when Coach Bull wanted to know the cause of the fumble. Albert thought he would make the lost ground by trying a line plunge, but the scrubs piled up the regulars on a heap. Coach Bull located the trouble and said: "Now, Miller, what the 'dickens' are you doing? Why don't you charge low? You charge as though you were going up a church aisle at a wedding." Albert was in a pretty bad hole now with twelve yards to go and third down. He used his usual good judgment when in a pinch and signaled for a quarterback run. When he was tackled before he made half the distance, he called down the interference, but Coach Bull looked at it differently and said: "Albert, if you confounded little pig-brained whelp would use your brain—why didn't you kick?"

COACH BULL.

Albert replied, "I know that would have been the right thing, but I didn't think about it."

COACH—"Well use your head hereafter—scrubs take the ball."

The scrubs took the ball and made a first down on a line plunge.

COACH—"You fellows on the right side of the line left a hole big enough to drive an ice wagon through. Such namby-pamby playing I never saw. You play like a lot of 'Horlick's Malted Milk' kids. I want you fellows to get down and play like the devil. Charge, and charge hard! Hit the line like this: —sz! —sz!! and Reisner! I don't want to see you do again what you did last Saturday. On the defensive you put your head into the ground like an ostrich and expected the men to fall over you like you would. Get on-side now and see whether you can't throw the scrubs for a loss. Get down there and dig your foot in, Fink! You stand there like a bantam rooster."

Keck tried a quarterback run and gained about 2 yards.

COACH—"Well Keck! What do you call that? Get around with that interference as you should. You're not playing with White Haven High School anymore." The fellows got up some nerve by this time, and scrimmage went pretty fair until Shupp got a chance to carry the ball and fumbled when he was tackled.

COACH—"No wonder you fumbled; look how you carried that ball. There was enough daylight between the ball and your arm to fill a coffin! Hold it tight! and hug it as if it were yours." The regulars got the ball and Coach Bull told Albert to try a forward pass.

PUTRA—"Say, Coach, may I throw the forward pass? I made some good passes last year."

COACH—"Never mind. I like Shelly's way of 'pegging' the ball and I'm satisfied. I wouldn't like to take the risk with you; you are not reliable."

After Shelly had "pegged" a successful forward pass, Albert called the fullback through the line.

COACH—"Aberly, you look like a clothes-pin going through the line! You always have to put your hand up to save your face. Now play football and drive into the line with your blockhead first and keep both hands on the ball."

On the next end run Butz was reprimanded for foul interference.

COACH—"Butz, keep your arms in. You stick out your hands like a woman promenading on the beach!" A few minutes later Coach Bull gave a whoop, threw his hat into the air and yelled, "Everybody take a five-minute rest. Butz took out the interference cleanly for the first time in four weeks!" Butz looked on in amazement but everybody rested five minutes.

Practice went pretty smooth for some time until Beidler got lazy; then the coach said: "Beidler, you would make a splendid player if you had someone behind you to shove you along with a pitch-fork and make you charge. But, as it is, we are not allowed to use a pitch-fork in a game."

After telling Coleman that he caught the ball like an old woman gathering clothes, Dr. Bull put the men through a ten-minute practice at drop and field-goal kicking. He then dismissed the players with his usual farewell: "I want all you fellows out here to-morrow night at 4 o'clock sharp. Good-night!"

HENRY DODD GASTIT.

SECOND ANNIVERSARY.

Yesterday was the second anniversary of Mr. Raymond Ammarell's installation as coach of the Bryan Tennis Club. In appreciation of his faithful and efficient services in that capacity, a host of friends tendered him a postcard shower. Mr. Ammarell, when interviewed by a reporter this morning, denied the rumor that the club name would be changed to the Also-Ran Tennis Club.

Those who can, do;

Those who can't, come from Shamrock.

Never impose upon idiots: Remember that all idiots are human beings, the same as you and I.

"What shall we sing?" asked the evangelist. "Rewive us again," cried the widower.

The Classical Club will hold its next meeting in September. A few bottles will be opened, a little business done, and then more bottles opened.

IN THE SOCIAL CIRCLE.

Geary E. Everett, '10, expects to summer again at Pocono Lake, same as last year.

Paul Phillips Huyett, '10, will very likely spend his vacation at picturesque Wernersville. Last summer he did much to elevate humanity at that place.

Herbert Frederick, '12, is again in the employ of the A. and R. T. Co., as tracksander. Next to the president, Mr. Frederick knows more about the inner workings of the company than any other man.

Robert R. Ulrich, '10, has at last finished "The Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin," which he began to read at the opening of the 1907-1908 Glee Club season. He declares it to be a most interesting book.

Master Clarence C. Troxell, '12, intends giving up the weed ere long.

At a temperance meeting last week, W. Charles T. U. Grant gave an interesting and inspiring oration on "Strong Drink." The orator's motto was "Down With It!" He seemed to be very full of his subject.

LOGIC.

The Sophs were in Logic recitation. Dr. Haas, feeling somewhat out of sorts, was questioning an unfortunate Soph, who failed to answer several of his questions with the result that he was presented with a "freezo"—a goose egg—in other words he flunked.

Across the hall Prof. Haasz, Associate in English, indisposed also, was quizzing a luckless Fresh, who, after failing repeatedly, was likewise given a flunk.

There were only 236 days in our College Calendar last year—Dr. Haas took a day off.

COMMUNICATED.

MR. EDITOR:—The person who wrote the article for this paper headed "Cleainsine Harmful for False Teeth" is either a malicious slanderer or an ignorant perverter of the truth. I first began using "Cleainsine" eight years ago when I got my false teeth, and since then I have had no trouble cleaning them. This is the recipe I used: "One pint of Cleainsine and one bag of mustard seed to every gallon of water in which the teeth are washed. Apply eleven times a day." I hope my friends and patrons will regard the article in the same light as I do, and continue to purchase "Cleainsine," the World Famous False Teeth Cleaner, either from myself or my colleague, Mr. Edgar la Wall.

(Signed) JOHN H. BIEBER.

NEW CLUB ORGANIZED.

Messrs. W. L. Eberts and E. F. Romig, of the Class of 1910, have effected a new organization of which the College can justly feel proud. The name of the club is as follows: "Ancient and Independent Order of Members of the M. C. Glee Club Wearing Full Dress Suits, Which, Because of Their Prehistoric Origin, Have Turned Bottle-Green, Shiny and Mossy."

A NOTED SUBSCRIBER.

This paper is exceedingly fortunate in having upon its list of subscribers, Mr. Arthur N. Butz. Mr. Butz, besides being the most extensive eater of boiled cabbage in the East, can also be proud of his ancestry. It is reported that his great-great-great-grandfather almost saw George Washington.

MORE PERSONALS.

Mr. Charles Grant has left for Atlantic City, where he will spend the summer as spirit medium at the Casey House. This responsible position is a well-merited one as Mr. Grant seems to have been gifted with the finer instincts of mixology from childhood up.

Mr. W. G. Bowsher has returned from a three days' trip to Washington, D. C. While there Mr. Bowsher obtained a patent for his new "Rubber Collar Shiner." No doubt many of our readers have often admired the brilliant lustre of Mr. B.'s neckwear. The secret's out now, and the name of the inventor will go down to succeeding generations as a by-word.

"Well," said the chauffeur, as he got a stone in his eye, "that's one less in the road."

EDITOR WEAKLY LEMON:—

I have noted the kindly and capable way in which you answer the queries addressed to you, and so in my present extremity I am led to refer my trouble to you.

In one of my classes in Greek, there is a young man (a Junior) who displays an intense interest in the subject. His inquiring mind is ever on the alert for information, in the quest of which he is eternally asking questions, such as "Did the city of Thessalonica have as pure a Greek element in the time of Philip as it had in the days of the Apostles?" Hitherto, I have managed to satisfy him, often by giving actual information—believing that he should have some general knowledge at least, as he finds the reading of the classics in the original a matter of great difficulty. However, the questions have been getting longer and less apropos; how, oh, how can I stop them? By advising promptly you will not only favor me, but also my colleagues who suffer with me.

DISTRACTED PROFESSOR.

[Your position is truly an embarrassing one. The questioner is plainly afflicted with Blufferitis, an acute modification of Tonguesolitis. Altho it never becomes epidemic, it does become chronic, lasting even for four years, unless checked by the application of cold water, preferably from a "shower."—EDITOR.]

MODERN MIRACLE.

Mr. John Kunkle, the veteran cornist who lost three (3) fingers while on duty in the Civilitionary War, yesterday came to the "office" and displayed two hands of four (4) fingers apiece. The wonderful restoring of the fingers is due to Mr. K.'s using Duffy's Malt Whiskey for the last twenty (20) years.

COMMUNICATED.

DEAR EDITOR OF THE WEAKLY LEMON:

Will you please advise me thru your columns what to do in a certain puzzling matter? I have been calling upon a girl for the last seventeen years, and tho, naturally, we are, as yet, somewhat formal with one another, it always seemed to me that she appreciated my attentions. But last Wednesday came the affair which precipitated all my troubles. After we had returned from the Nickel and had seated ourselves in the parlor, she said, "Leon, we waste too much oil every night." Did she mean by that that I should call in the day time, or was it a hint that I should cease calling? Please answer.

Your broken-hearted friend,
LEON.

From his own lips we have the reason why Paul Phillips Huyett didn't enter the Junior Oratorical. He was afraid the Judges would make a mistake and give him the German prize.

BOOK REVIEWS.

COMPLETE ETIQUETTE, by Wohlsen. The latest book of its kind. Tells all about flirting, kissing, spooning, hugging, and kindred graces. Especially recommended to young people, single, engaged or newly married. The chapter on how to be happy tho married is declared by Marcks to be worth the whole price of the book (98c.). The author shows the results of a wide and varied experience.

SALLIES ABROAD IN THE DARK, by Curly Locks Grant, the world-famed author of a series of volumes written in the interest of the Total Abstinence Movement. The author gives a graphic account of the allurements of a great city. The dangers and temptations which confront the unsophisticated rural resident on his entrance into the city are dealt with in detail, and practical suggestions are given. Flirtation is considered as a means to an end; but the author concludes that, while under certain conditions this art may be employed with pleasure and profit, care should be taken to avoid excess. The advantages of access to high society are considered at great length and in minute detail, practical advice being given which will be of immense service to those seeking social distinction. The style is good; it reflects with great accuracy the author's own inimitably frank nature. Written by "one who knows," this book is bound to become an authority. SALLIES ABROAD IN THE DARK, by C. L. Grant. Pocket Edition, Limp Leather, Divinity Circuit, $1.75 net.

PIPPIN AND THE PERFORATED POUCH: Being the Strange Story of the mysterious disappearance of small quantities of Bull Durham tobacco. The story has a distinctively French setting. Monsieur Pippin Gernet, the hero of the story, charges Monsieur Stetler with appropriating his (Gernet's) tobacco. M. Stetler stoutly denies the allegation and defies the allegator. The lie passes between them, followed by a challenge which is promptly accepted. The duel begins, but the story ends very remarkably and abruptly when Publius Claudius Reed and Jean Galeazzo Visconte Beidler, the seconds, discover that the contestants are of Royal Blood; the duel can not continue as Royal Blood is too precious to be "spilled." M. Stetler is found to be the Duke of Wyomissing and M. Gernet, the Count of Bath. They recognize each other, become reconciled, and live happily ever afterwards.

A NEW COLLEGE SONG.

(Sung to the tune of "Solomon Levi.")

For sale by Hinds & Noble.

O, my name is Levi Reisenbaum
And I sell je-ew-el-ry;
When an easy mark comes to my room
I rube him cru-el-ly;
For I sell him pins made out of brass,
(But he thinks they're made of Gold)
Oh the guy's as green as the greenest grass
When he leaves my pins are sold.

THE LEMON.

No, my name's not Reisen-Bauman,
No, not that! O no sir-ee!
But I'd like to hang—(Jeff Davis) on
The Tri-gon-om-et-tree.
Now a word or two and then I'm done,
And I'll breathe a fond farewell.
I trust the rubes won't make me run
When we meet again in—heaven.

EARLE DOUGLASS LAROS,
Ex-member of 1910, Muhlenberg.

GFOMETRICAL BOARDING.

(Compiled by Henry Dodd Gastit.)

Definitions.

1. All boarding houses are the same boarding houses.
2. Boarders in the same boarding house and on the same floor are equal to one another.
3. A wrangle is the disinclination to one another of two boarders that meet together, but are not on the same floor.
5. All the rooms in the Dorm. being taken, a single is said to be a double room.

Postludes and Propositions.

1. A pie may be produced any numbers of times.
2. The landlady may be reduced to her lowest terms by a series of propositions.
3. Any two meals at most boarding houses are together less than one square feed.
4. On the same bill and on the same side of it there should not be two charges for the same thing.

A MUSICAL AND LITERARY TREAT.

The Phi Tappa Keg All-Star Musical and Literary Club gave its 'steenth program at the corner of 26th and Liberty last evening, in the presence of many friends. Like Orpheus of old, many of the men on the program drew the stones their way—and moved people the other way. The program:

Duet—"Die Wacht Am Rhine," REITZ and COLEMAN; Mandolin Solo—"Waiting," ABERLY; Imitation of Fire Alarm, etc.—REISNER and McCORMICK; Violin and Flageolet Duet—RUPP and BROBST; Cornet and Clarionet Duet—KUNKLE and ZIEGENFUS; Select Reading—CY WILLISTON; Pipe Duet—"Johnny Smoker," BARINGER and WOLPER; Solo—"Cuddle up a Little Closer," BOBBY URICH; Another—"Just a Little Bit of Taffy," JOHN ALBERT.

AN ODE.

How dear to my heart are the books in brown cover
When "fond recollection" deserts me, alas!
Of Latin and Greek I have ne'er been a lover,
So oft must resort to translations in class.
While some love the Red Book and others the Green
Book,
I cleave to the Brown Book—the Brown Book for mine!
Old friends may ignore me when teachers "encore" me,
But faithful and true is the Brown Book divine!
So here's to the trot, may its shadow ne'er lessen,
Except when its pages we have to unbind.

Some Reasons

Why

The Reading
Eagle
Makes
Good
For the Advertiser.

Reading
Eagle
Co.
READING, PA.

It is pre-eminently, a family newspaper. It goes into homes and is an important factor of the home circle.

It gives the news of the world and home news, the kind you want the most, in full.

It costs 10 cents a week (not 6 cents) and offers no premiums or schemes to get money from subscribers.

The subscriber who pays 10 cents a week for a newspaper without prizes or premiums, buys the newspaper for its merits—buys it because he wants to read it.

Advertisers appreciate the worth of such a paper to them.

Many newspapers are bought merely for the premium offered with the papers.

Such papers are of little worth to the advertiser.

Such papers derive their greatest profit not from the sale of the newspaper, but from the sale of the merchandise used as premiums, thus depriving legitimate merchants and advertisers from just that amount of business.

When placing your advertising, look fully into the worth of the READING EAGLE.

G. C. Aschbach's Music House

Is the one first-class music house in the Valley having 40 separate departments. No other music house approaches this one in size, in the amount of stock carried or in the number of standard instruments always on exhibition.

We import Violins—and all other members of this string family. We are jobbers of EDISON PHONOGRAPHS and RECORDS, and handle all the accessories. The Victor talking machine department represents the Victor instrument in every detail.

The assortment of Pianos—can not be appreciated unless investigated as here the world's best can be seen and heard under the most advantageous conditions. (Fifty styles to choose from.)

Selfplayers—Regina Music Boxes—Sheet Music—and everything musical are here in abundance, and the prices are all in PLAIN FIGURES.

We believe in quality—give full value for every dollar spent here, never misrepresent—and treat everyone alike. We appreciate your calling on us, and trust to have the pleasure of serving you when you are in need of "anything musical."
